Liner admits passengers rioted; 5 ordered off

TRIESTE, Italy (AP) — Irate passengers who paid between $1,000 and $4,000 for a 72-day world cruise aboard an Italian ship nearly rioted over a shortened stay in Acapulco, Mexico, and the crew at one point was ordered to be ready to use fire hoses against them, the ship's owners said today.

Five of the 1,500 passengers were ordered off the ship, and they left with the "help of Mexican police" who were called aboard, but the hoses were not used, it said.

The five passengers ordered off were identified by the company as Raphael and Phyllis Lightman and Manus Carlin of Britain, and Hans Tinti and Ingrid Bents of West Germany.

The Hamburg newspaper Bild said they were "thrown from board," and were among 300 passengers who complained about the ship running behind schedule and "drastically reduced sightseeing schedules in other ports of call."

Bild said the passengers were about to hand a petition to the captain, Ricciotti Santorini, requesting a longer stay in Acapulco when sailors armed with clubs turned on them.

The company made no mention of clubs in its account of the episode.

The "grave incident" and "disorder" occurred April 7 and 8 after the 27,000-ton Galileo Galilei, carrying 346 crewmen, was forced to cut short a scheduled stop in Acapulco, the company said.

It said the ship departed from its course from Haiti to Acapulco on April 5 in answer to a call for help from a freighter to pick up an injured seaman, causing a 13½-hour delay in arriving in Acapulco.

Some of the passengers asked the captain to delay departure from Acapulco so they could spend the time they were scheduled to spend there, the company said.

But the skipper, at the direction of the company, refused, saying this would cause problems in sailing through the Panama Canal where traffic was snarled following a strike by canal workers.

The ship is scheduled to complete its world tour in Genoa on April 25.

Postal panel paves way on discount for first class

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Postal Rate Commission cleared the way today for a one-cent discount on first-class letters for large business mailers.

The commission's recommendation, expected to be approved by the governors of the Postal Service, would for the first time give a discount rate for first-class mail.

Large mailers who bundle mail according to destination would be allowed a one-cent discount. The present first-class letter rate is 13 cents for the first ounce.

Big mailers already are required by the Postal Service to sort first-class mail. The commission found that this work costs at least one cent per letter.

The Postal Service sought the discount after some large mailers started delivering their own mail. Postal officials hope the discount will stem this loss of volume.

The commission also recommended that envelopes meet certain size criteria, another suggestion by the Postal Service. This requirement is expected to facilitate Postal Service mechanization plans.

The standardization rules are expected to have the greatest effect on the greeting card industry. Greeting cards now come in a wide variety of sizes and shapes.

Any envelopes smaller than specifications set by the commission would be banned and there would be a surcharge on any larger envelopes.

Automaker has near-record first quarter

DETROIT (AP) — Chrysler Corp., snapping an 18-month string of heavy losses, reported strong net earnings of $72 million for the first quarter of 1976. Financial analysts called it one of the most dramatic turnarounds in American business.

Chrysler, which accumulated record losses of $312 million in 1974 and 1975, said Wednesday its profits were the second highest ever for a January-April period.

The nation's third largest auto maker earned a first-quarter record $90 million in 1973.

During the first three months of 1976, Chrysler's U.S. car sales were up 34 per cent from the year before.

The firm's latest quarterly earnings, equal to $1.20 per share, were inflated by an extraordinary addition of $15 million due to a tax credit applied against prior losses.

In defense of agency

Laird reveals how CIA helped thwart mass murder plots

NEW YORK (AP) — Plots to kill masses of people with bombs in New York City and to assassinate elected officials in the United States have been thwarted by CIA infiltration of terrorist groups, former Defense Secretary Melvin Laird says.

Writing in defense of the Central Intelligence Agency, Laird also credits American intelligence with saving the nation billions in defense costs and, since 1973, with keeping peace between Israel and Egypt.

Laird's article, "Let's Stop Undermining the CIA," was written for The May Reader's Digest, the magazine for which he is senior counsellor for national and international affairs.

Laird did not identify the specific targets of the thwarted assassinations.

He wrote: "On at least two occasions, the CIA has forestalled assassins bound for the United States with orders to kill elected public officials.

"It has also thwarted plans to kill prominent American Jews with letter bombs."

He said the attempted bombings in New York City coincided with a visit of former Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir on March 4, 1973.

He said, "police rushed to busy midtown intersections and hauled away two cars with enough Soviet-made explosives to kill everybody within a 100-yard radius. The terrorist explosives were timed to detonate at noon, when streets would be most crowded."

Laird said that again in 1973, just before Christmas, "the CIA learned that six small, handcarried Soviet SA-7 missiles — extremely accurate against low-flying aircraft — are being smuggled in Libyan diplomatic pouches to Black September terrorists in Europe. The terrorists planned to shoot down a 747 landing in Rome. However, acting on CIA intelligence, European governments disrupted the operation and spared the lives of hundreds of holiday travelers."

Laird maintained that disclosures of intelligence activities by congressional investigations are compromising and paralyzing the agency's ability to function.

"For instance," he writes, "disclosures that the United States has used submarines in Soviet territorial waters to monitor Russian weapons tests have greatly diminished the flow of this vital intelligence."

"During the past 25 years," he continued, "the Soviet Union has not developed a single major new weapon without our knowing it well in advance. Without such knowledge, we undoubtedly would have wasted untold billions preparing to counter threat which did not actually exist."

As for the Middle East situation since 1973, Laird says U.S. intelligence has kept Israel and Egypt continuously informed of each other's military status. "Given proof that neither is about to pounce on the other, the Arabs and Israelis have been wiling at least to try to devise a formula for Middle East harmony. Our intelligence has bought the necessary time."

Laird maintained the CIA took a bum rap by what he described as an allegation that it "jeopardized public health by conducting biological-warfare experiments in New York City subways."

He said the fact was that the experiment was an Army operation — not CIA — and that it involved placing a harmless powder in a subway and measuring how far it was wafted down the tunnel. The purpose was to assess the vulnerability of the transit system to sabotage, he said.

Laird was unavailable for comment today.

ORDERED FROM HOME

Sheriff's officials give John Korner a written order to evacuate his Minot, N.D., home as they swept the city's low areas warning residents to move away from the rising Souris River. Some 30 miles of dikes have been constructed in hopes of sparing the city from the worst flood in its history. River is expected to crest at a record eight feet above flood stage by early Saturday.

Man leaps to death in L.A. hotel fire

LOS ANGELES (AP) — One person was killed today when he leaped from his room in an effort to escape flames that swept through the top floor of a Wilshire Center area hotel.

Fire officials said the unidentified man was killed in the leap from his fifth floor room at the Post Hotel on South Bonnie Brae Street. The fire apparently started in his room, said fire department spokesman Ray Carpenter.

He said there were unconfirmed reports that two other persons died in the blaze but a search of the hotel disclosed no further bodies.

About 15 persons were evacuated from the red brick structure, the second mid-town hotel to be hit by fire in the early morning hours. Four persons, two of them firemen, were injured in a pre-dawn blaze at the Leland Hotel in downtown Los Angeles.

Fire officials said the Post Hotel blaze was reported about 5:30 a.m. and brought under control 30 minutes later by about 60 fire fighters. Fifteen persons were evacuated from the top floor of the structure, they said.

At the Leland Hotel fire, two firemen were injured, an unidentified person suffered smoke inhalation and an 18-year-old man suffered a severely cut arm when he broke a window to escape the flames.

The fire was discovered by two undercover narcotics agents who raced into the three-story structure to awaken the occupants. Firemen said the hotel's 65 occupants were evacuated.

About 95 firemen battled the blaze and put it out in about 30 minutes. Damage was estimated at $50,000.

Firemen said careless smoking probably was the cause of the Leland Hotel fire, which broke out on the top floor, gutted four rooms and then licked its way into the attic.

Oscar Carillo, cut his arm when he broke a window and leaped from the second floor.

Gunmen get $3-4 million in luxury apt. robbery

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Police and FBI agents say they're without a solid lead in a robbery at a luxury condominum that netted three armed men $3 million to $4 million in jewels and cash from 180 safe-deposit boxes.

The only physical clue police said they had to the crime was part of an unidentified tool used to pry open the boxes.

Only a few of the tenants who had their valuables stolen had insurance, police said. It was not known whether the condominium had coverage against theft.

"I saw three men with bandanas over their faces like stagecoach robbers," said Edward Burnett, one of two security guards overpowered early Wednesday morning at the six-story Palm Beach Towers. Apartments there sell for $60,000 to $250,000.

"I started to reach for my gun, but since I don't have suicidal tendencies, I stopped," Burnett added.

Wearing red and blue bandanas over their faces and apparently armed with .45-caliber pistols, they surprised guards Burnett and Karl Markett.

One of the robbers donned a guard's hat to fool switchboard operator Emily Eberle into opening the telephone room, police said. The three employes then had their arms and legs bound with nylon rope, their mouths and eyes covered with masking tape.

Police said the thieves then broke open 180 of the 300 safe deposit boxes and took several thousand dollars in checks and cash from the building's offices.

"It was definitely a very professional job and very well planned," said Police Chief J.M. Gaffney. He estimated it took the robbers three hours to complete the crime.

Reaction from the 250-300 tenants varied. One unidentified woman collapsed and was taken to a nearby hospital. Others milled about the lobby watching reporters, photographers and police.

33 won't budge as flood stage near in Minot

MINOT, N.D. (AP)—Thirty-three persons were holding fast today, refusing to evacuate their homes on Minot's flood plain where nearly 12,000 people already have left in the face of possible flooding of the Souris River.

The river is expected to crest early Saturday at eight feet above flood stage, and the National Weather Service said the city faced a 30 per cent chance of rainshowers and possible thunderstorms tonight.

National Guardsmen and uniformed officers swept through the nearly empty third of the city Wednesday night asking remaining residents to leave.

A few residents were still packing belongings as officials checked to insure natural gas and electricity were turned off. The sweep personnel were ordered to let residents stay in their homes if they wished.

"We will coordinate the locations of those remaining with the Coast Guard in case a rescue effort is needed," City Manager John Arnold said.

Last week Arnold had given 12,000 people a deadline of today to leave their homes in this city of 35,000.

The flood plain area has been cordoned off to prevent looting and vandalism and "everything is secure," Arnold said.

The few remaining residents were asked to sign location forms in case the dikes should break before they could leave, officials said.

James Ruyak, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers construction chief for the flood fight, said, "Anytime you get delayed it's serious — the rain could do just that — making it muddy and slippery. I am not looking forward to it."

He said dikes surrounding the flood plain were completed but bulldozers and trucks were handling erosion problems and the rain could cause problems.

John Korner and five of his family and friends were packing the last of their household goods when sheriff's officers knocked on his door.

"I'm moving myself," said Korner, who had to flee only last year when the river flooded his home. "We are going up on the hill to my sister-in-law's house."

Earthen dikes, some 25 feet high, now ring the low lying neighborhoods, and officials said they will cordon off the area to prevent looting and vandalism.

Six bridges that cross the river in the center of the city were to be closed, and disaster officials prepared for possible sewer problems as the Souris continued to rise. Drinking water, however, was considered safe for the entire city.

Those who remained were asked to sign location forms in case the dikes should break.

Chino to examine year-round plan at Don Lugo High

A proposal that could lead to scrapping the year-round school program at Chino's Don Lugo High School next year will be considered by the school board.

Board member Lyle Briggs, who was elected last year on an anti-YRS platform, moved Tuesday to place an item on the board's April 27 agenda "to consider the feasibility of continuing YRS" at Don Lugo.

Briggs based his motion on the fact that "over half" of the students registering at Don Lugo for next year have opted for the traditional nine-month program. (The district currently offers students the choice of YRS or traditional schedules.)

John McMurtry, assistant superintendent for instruction, reported that 436 students out of a total enrollment of 890 at Don Lugo are being projected for the traditional program, or 49 per cent. About 454, or 51 per cent, are estimated for the year-round schedule.

The deadline for transfers allowed each year from one program to the other was Wednesday, so McMurtry should have final figures for the board at the April 27 meeting.

Briggs said feasibility of continuing YRS should be based on costs involved and effects on the total educational program.

As to scrapping YRS, Briggs stated, "I want to leave myself open until facts and figures are brought in. But I've seen problems at Lugo and the program has suffered.

"There has been so much problem in geometry classes that the course was eliminated at Don Lugo. Traditional and YRS classes were lumped together and it just didn't work out."

Don Lugo, which only houses ninth graders, should be brought in line with Chino High School's strictly traditional program, he added.

In other business, the board gave final approval to a new district policy requiring patriotic exercises each day in every classroom — in addition to the Pledge of Allegiance.

The move was an outgrowth of controversy in recent weeks over the fact the pledge is not recited at school board meetings. During one recent meeting, board member Roy Ward walked out of the room when the pledge was recited. It still has not been approved for recitation at every board meeting.

The new policy in the classroom will require "appropriate patriotic exercises" during the first period of the day. The daily pledge, generally being recited currently, will now be required.

However, students whose parents do not want them to recite the pledge will be allowed to "sit or stand quietly" while the ceremony is performed.

Swedish king gets royal L.A. welcome

LOS ANGELES (AP) — They treated him like a king, rolling out an authentic stagecoach, seating him next to Norwegian actress Liv Ullman at a luncheon and giving him the grand tour of McDonnell-Douglas Corp.

And Wednesday night actor Danny Kaye hosted King Carl XVI Gustaf of Sweden to a home-cooked Chinese dinner.

Gustaf caught a glimpse of the Old West and the New Hollywood and said he was impressed by what he saw.

After a tour of the backlot sets of the Burbank Studios, including everything from Western streets to New York tenements, the monarch told a luncheon audience:

"You've got everything here. After seeing all this, I think perhaps I should have come here immediately instead of touring the United States for two weeks. It would have been cheaper for the Swedish Foreign Office."

The King's remarks were typical of the joshing tone at the film industry's reception for the 29-year-old monarch. The luncheon featured comedy by Edgar Bergen, Chicago-born of Swedish parentage, who performed with his famed dummies Charlie McCarthy and Mortimer Snerd.

Bergen explained to McCarthy that Vikings had discovered America 500 years before Columbus. McCarthy commented, "Columbus must have had a better press agent."

Earlier King Gustaf had toured the McDonnell Douglas aircraft plant where a DC9 and a transport plane are being assembled for Scandinavian Airline Systems.

The king flew by helicopter to the Burbank Studios and immediately transferred to a stagecoach loaned for the occasion by the Wells Fargo Bank.

Anticancer chemical discovered in urine

ANAHEIM (AP) — A chemical with the power to convert cancer cells back to normal cells has been extracted from human urine and may explain why some cases of cancer cure themselves, according to a Baylor University investigator.

If the naturally occurring substance can be made artificially, Dr. S. R. Burzynski said Wednesday, it could be valuable in cancer therapy because it does not seem to affect normal cells.

However, the work is in its early stages and has not even been tested in animals.

The abnormal, out-of-control growth of cancer cells is believed to be the result of an "error" in their genetic mechanism that controls development. The substance which Burzynski called antineoplaston apparently detects cells that are getting out of line and feeds them new information that returns them to normal. The substance is so named because it works against neoplasms, or abnormal growths.

The study carried out by Burzynski and associates at Baylor, the M.D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute and New York Medical College was reported Wednesday to the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology.

Burzynski said he studied 180 cases in which cancer disappeared for no apparent reason. This happens only in about one in 80,000 cases, he said, "or about four patients in the United States each year."

The spontaneous regression must have been due to the same mechanism that routinely corrects genetic errors in the body, theorized Burzynski.

Cancer-causing forces are continuously triggering abnormal cell growth and would soon kill a person were it not for such a correction system.

Burzynski actually found three kinds of antineoplastons which he said are probably formed in body tissues and pass into the blood and urine.

L.A. judge rubs out 3 massage parlors

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Three massage parlors which allegedly housed prostitution have been ordered closed by a Superior Court judge under provisions of the Red Light Abatement Law.

Judge Harry Hupp issued preliminary injunctions Wednesday against the Institute of Oral Love, the Sexual Relief Center, and Wild Mary's, but said he would change his order if owners could show that the three establishments' activities had become more legitimate.

The orders will remain in effect pending a trial of civil lawsuits brought by the district attorney, he said.

Meanwhile, officials said Wednesday that enforcement of the city's new massage parlor ordinance could be delayed if the city and county can't agree on which agency will give tests to applicants for massage parlor permits.

The City Council wants the county Health Services Department to give the tests, but the county Board of Supervisors has opposed that plan.

The ordinance giving the city tighter controls over massage parlors is due to take effect April 18.

Watergate writer weds

NEW YORK (AP) — Carl Bernstein, coauthor of the news stories that helped uncover the Watergate scandal, seemed too busy for romance in the movie "All the President's Men," where actor Dustin Hoffman plays Bernstein.

But Bernstein found time Wednesday to marry Nora Ephron, Esquire magazine editor-columnist and author, in a civil ceremony in a New York City judge's chamber. Among those present was Bob Woodward, Bernstein's partner on the Washington Post reporting team portrayed in the movie.

Chapin was on the payroll

CHICAGO (AP) — Insurance magnate W. Clement Stone paid Watergate figure Dwight L. Chapin $45,000 a year while Chapin was in prison, Stone says.

"We have a long-term contract with him (Chapin)," Stone said Wednesday. "He is a man of outstanding character and ability. He has made a lot a money for us. He took companies that were losing money and turned them around. He's a brain," said Stone, who donated some $2 million to former President Richard M. Nixon's 1972 campaign.

Chapin, 36, convicted of perjury before the Watergate grand jury, served seven months and 22 days at the federal minimum security prison at Lompoc, Calif. He was released on April 2.

Stone said Wednesday he put Chapin on the payroll after his conviction two years ago.

General honored in Florida

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Air Force Gen. Daniel "Chappie" James, a native of Pensacola, Fla., and the highest ranking black in the armed forces, has been honored by Gov. Reubin Askew and the Florida legislature.

James, commander of the North American Air Defense Command, was commended Wednesday in ceremonies in the House and Senate for "his outstanding qualities of patriotism and leadership."

Askew proclaimed "Gen. Daniel 'Chappie' James Day for Florida."

Former song writer indicted

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Loretto Fraieli, 65, a jewelry firm owner and one time writer of hit songs, has been indicted in U.S. District Court for tax evasion.

Fraieli wrote such hit tunes as "I Need You Now", and "If I Give My Heart To You" in the early 1960s under the name Jimmie Crane.

He was charged Wednesday with evading taxes on earnings from his jewelry firm — Colonial Novelty Co. in Providence.

Bets space aliens will come

EL CAJON, Calif. (AP) — Ruth Norman is willing to bet that visitors from outer space will land in Southern California this year.

In fact, she already has bet $4,000 on it, and she has even prepared a landing zone for her expected space visitors.

The 75-year-old widow is co-founder of the Unarius Society, which believes in the existence and impending visit of extra-terrestial beings.

Mrs. Norman says she has bet a total of $4,000 with a London bookmaking firm at odds ranging from 40-to-1 to 100-to-1.

Gets title in China post

WASHINGTON (AP) — Banker Thomas S. Gates has received the rank of ambassador in his new role as the top American diplomat in Peking. President Ford also pledged to continue efforts for normalization of relations with China.

Can't find Hughes' will

HOUSTON (AP) — Ultimate control of Howard Hughes' vast fortune remained in doubt today as the search continued for a still-missing will that associates and distant relatives insist was left by the billionaire recluse.

Hughes' sole surviving aunt and her son, an attorney, were named Wednesday as temporary administrators of the Hughes estate estimated to be worth $1.5 billion to $2 billion.

That action was taken in accord with officials of Summa Corp., the company Hughes set up to run his business empire. At the same time, Summa officials acknowledged for the first time that they have been unable to find a will.

But spokesmen for both Summa and the family members said they believe an effective will executed by Hughes exists and that a search for it will continue.

Hughes, married twice and divorced twice, had no children, and it was widely assumed he had left a large part of his fortune to medical research. Without a will, the portion going to federal taxes would be significantly increased and long legal battles might be waged for control of his enterprises.

William T. Miller, a lawyer with the Houston firm of Andrews, Kurth, Campbell & Jones, filed the application Wednesday to make Mrs. William R. Lummis, Hughes' aunt, and her son, William R. Lummis, temporary administrators of the estate.

Lummis is a partner in the law firm which filed the application. Mrs. Lummis is a sister of Hughes' mother, the late Mrs. Howard Hughes Sr. She and her son both live in Houston.

In Los Angeles, Summa Corp. reported in a formal statement that it is believed Hughes executed a will, although so far none has been found.

The statement said the temporary court-supervised administration was sought to insure continued operation of all Hughes enterprises until the will is found.

As expected, the Lummises designated representatives in Nevada and California to oversee Hughes' holdings in those states.

In state court at Las Vegas, Mrs. Lummis nominated the First National Bank of Nevada as special administrator for Hughes' Nevada interests.

In Los Angeles, Richard C. Gano Jr., was appointed special administrator for Hughes' California interests. Gano is a first cousin of Hughes.

Campers held up, but get it all back

Four youths hiking in the Cucamonga Canyon area were threatened by other youths with axes and knives who robbed them of their camping gear and food, West End Sheriff's deputies reported Wednesday.

Deputies said that the four youths, one injured by the attackers, sought out two adult motorcyclists in the canyon and asked them to look for the robbers. The motorcyclists reported finding the youths and making them return the camping gear and food to the hikers.

Deputy Toby Tyler said that in returning the stolen camping gear to the hikers the other youths also gave them an egg carrier and four bags of hot chocolate mix. The motorcyclists, who were not identified, reportedly then let the youths go.

Tyler said that the robbery of the hikers is similar to another robbery Sunday where two youths holding an axe and a knife stole camping gear from two hikers in the area.

The youths being sought for questioning in the incidents were described as a male white, 15; a male Negro, 15, a male Latin, 15, and another male Latin about 12 to 14.

Nabbed in hospital

A man was arrested Wednesday evening at Pomona Valley Community Hospital and accused of carrying a loaded revolver inside the hospital, police reported.

Loyd Alvin Leonard, 52, of 252 S. Myrtle St., Pomona, was placed under citizen's arrest by hospital security officers Edward R. Belk and Michael K. Hargis and turned over to Pomona police.

The security officers said they had been warned that a man matching Leonard's description was armed and inside the building. They said they found a loaded, .22-caliber revolver in his jacket pocket.

Pomona officers reported the suspect told them that the weapon was not his and he did not know it was in his jacket. He was booked on a charge of carrying a loaded firearm in public.

Pipe bomb blast

An aluminum pipe stuffed with match heads and placed against a window at the Sierra Vista School auditorium exploded early today causing minor damage, Upland Police reported.

Police said that residents around the school began calling in about 1:07 a.m. to report a loud explosion at the school at 253 E. 14th Street. When Officer Tom Fitzpatrick arrived at the school he found an auditorium window shattered and fragments of aluminum surrounding the area. Damage was restricted to the window and a curtain behind the window, Fitzpatrick said.

"It was strong enough to blow someone's hand or arm off," said Fitzpatrick.

Sinatra offered to help CIA

BOSTON (AP) — Entertainer Frank Sinatra offered to help the Central Intelligence Agency in a direct proposal to CIA Director George Bush two months ago, says the Boston Globe.

The newspaper said the offer was made at a gathering in the New York apartment of Bush's brother, Jonathan, head of a brokerage firm.

The Globe quoted Jonathan Bush as saying Sinatra spoke freely of his love for his family and the United States, and made a "very sincere and generous offer" to help the CIA in any way possible.

The story said Sinatra did a lot of world traveling, met a number of notables including the shah of Iran and Prince Philip of England and thought he might be useful to the CIA.

The Globe quoted Jonathan Bush as saying his brother made no commitment to Sinatra.

Present at the gathering with the Bush brothers and Sinatra were television producer Paul W. Keyes, Jonathan's wife and a friend, some neighbors in the apartment building and two CIA employes, including George Bush's secretary.

The Globe quoted Keyes as saying Sinatra may have offered to help the CIA, but made no pitch to go to work for Bush. Keyes said, "To my knowledge it was just old times and exchanges of pleasantries for about 45 minutes to an hour.

"Frank had just come back from a European tour and he talked a lot about it."

The newspaper said at one point George Bush drew a laugh from the group by saying to Sinatra, "There is some special work you could do for us in Australia," an apparent reference to the publicized troubles Sinatra had with critics on an Australian singing tour several years ago.

Sinatra was a strong supporter of President John F. Kennedy and had enlisted support from other entertainment people for Kennedy.

The head of the Justice Department Organized Crime section during the Kennedy administration, Edwyn Silberling, said Wednesday he had proposed a broad tax probe of Sinatra, but it was apparently turned down by the then attorney general, Robert F. Kennedy. Silberling is now practicing law in New York.

Sinatra and the Bush brothers could not be reached immediately for comment on the Globe story.

Pasadena remains split in integration

PASADENA (AP) — Six years into a system of court-ordered integration here, school and community leaders are still divided on the merits of school integration in improving race relations.

The issue still causes tempers to boil as they did Wednesday at a meeting of the state Senate Judiciary Subcommittee.

"Most people looked on busing as a vile-tasting medicine, thinking it tastes bad but does you good," said Henry Myers, chairman of the Board of Education of the Pasadena Unified School District.

"If it worked, I would support it," Myers said. "It doesn't."

But Al Lowe, who was the board president in the autumn of 1970 when Pasadena's plan went into effect, said integration has provided an atmosphere of harmony, equality of opportunity and understanding that spreads from the students to their parents.

"There is widespread support for the plan," Lowe said. "We are getting an influx of whites into the community who want a multiracial situation or at least don't object to one."

Myers, on the other hand, cited a recently published report that indicates integration has failed to bring about academic parity and social harmony.

Academically, black students in 12th grade lag behind white students in the same grade by four years, Myers said, quoting school district data.

Lumping together students of varied abilities has resulted in boredom for good students, frustration and discipline problems for poor ones, Myers said.

Acknowledging that, Pasadena NAACP President Ruby McKnight Williams said the data reflected educational and economic backgrounds. "We have some poor, ignorant blacks. We also have some poor, ignorant whites."

Beverly Van Neurs, president of the Pasadena PTA Council, said racial groups tend to cluster together because their educations began in segregated schools.

The situation probably will improve, she said, by the time children who have begun their educations in integrated schools reach high school.

EPA admits emission estimates too high

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency says new tests show it overestimated the amount of noxious sulfate emissions from catalyst-equipped cars that might be expected to concentrate around highways.

The agency announced Wednesday that tests it conducted with General Motors Corp. in Michigan dispel earlier predictions that sulfate concentrations would reach dangerous levels within three years in California.

But one EPA spokesman said that although the Michigan test points out errors in the model used to make the earlier prediction, it does not relieve all concern over sulfate emissions.

The first model was based on certain atmospheric conditions that produce higher concentrations of sulfate than do actual road conditions, the EPA said. The agency said it learned of the exaggeration by accummulating data on more than 350 catalyst cars almost one million miles on a GM proving ground in Michigan.

"The (first) model predicted much higher levels than measured in the GM experiment, in some cases as much as 20 times too high," said Dr. Fred Bowditch of General Motors.

Burying wife alive with bulldozer an 'accident'

FERNANDINA BEACH, Fla. (AP) - A defense attorney says it was purely accidental that William Peter Wright Jr. buried his wife alive with a bulldozer.

Quentin Till made that assessment of the killing of Laura Wright, 19, the night of Nov. 10, as he spoke in court Wednesday.

Till, in an opening statement in Wright's trial for first-degree murder, said the defendant and his wife had argued about an insurance policy and the woman said she would rather be dead.

So, the attorney said, Wright dug a hole with the bulldozer and was astonished when his wife jumped in it.

"The whole happening that night was purely accidental," Till told the jury of six men and six women.

Non-candidate Humphrey is still the political man

WASHINGTON (AP) — How do you introduce Hubert H. Humphrey to an audience? That has become one of Washington's most perplexing, if least important, problems.

Eugene C. Patterson of the St. Petersburg, Fla., Times, handled it this way on Wednesday:

"Our speaker today," he told the American Society of Newspaper Editors, "is a former vice president, was the mayor of Minneapolis at one time, is a former presidential nominee, a leading senator, a happy warrior, and we can't rudely disregard his insistence that he isn't running for anything."

Humphrey, who says he is not a candidate for anything but another six years in the Senate, was then questioned by an ASNE panel.

He said he didn't know why, as a noncandidate, he was visiting the editors, who represent newspapers from all over the country, except that "someone sent me an invitation and I'm a creature of habit."

There was the inevitable question on whether his decision not to allow his name to be entered in any presidential primary was final.

"That's my present judgment," said Humphrey.

"Could it change before, ..." began the questioner, William Eaton of the Chicago Daily News.

The audience roared. Humphrey repeated, "That is my present judgment."

"In the next two weeks? How long do you think it will be in the 'present,'" Humphrey was asked.

"Most of the time, I imagine."

"You thinking it over?"

"Not particularly," said Humphrey.

He explained that never is very finite in politics, "but I'm a political man and I know the pressures that are brought to bear on you and I don't expect to yield."

Humphrey was asked his feeling about a Democratic convention start with no clear favorite. He said unless something startling happens in the upcoming Pennsylvania primary, none of the candidates would sew up the nomination from the start.

He said, "I feel perfectly capable physically, emotionally, mentally and politically of conducting a major campaign if I needed to do so. The question is do I want to do so and it isn't because of any physical condition. You go up to the Senate and take a look at what you got up there and take a look at me. I'll take 'em on."

Political man Humphrey was asked if he thought President Ford's pardon of Richard M. Nixon would become a campaign issue.

Said the noncandidate, "It depends on what the other side does. If they get mean and nasty it w become a campaign issue. If th start throwing mud, they're apt get a ton of concrete dumped them."

And about that Humphrey President Committee reported to operating? "I don't know of any co mittee. I've authorized no comm tee ... nor has anybody b authorized to speak for me, sol for me, talk for me, or embrace me. Period," Humphrey said. do all that for myself."

Soliah look-alike testifies

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A man with a striking resemblance to Steven Soliah says he walked into a local bank during the middle of a robbery for which Soliah is on trial.

Victor Kops, a clinical psychologist, testified that he walked a few feet into the Crocker National Bank branch before realizing a holdup was taking place. He then turned and ran out the door.

He was the first witness called Wednesday as defense attorneys, contending that Soliah is a victim of mistaken identification, worked to undercut testimony identifying him as one of the robbers.

Prosecutors rested their case early Wednesday afternoon after calling about 50 witnesses and introducing more than 100 pieces of evidence.

Soliah, Patricia Hearst's lover during her last months as a fugitive, is the only person charged with taking part in the $15,000 robbery last April 21 in surburan Carmichael.

A customer, Myrna Opsahl, was killed by a shotgun fired by one of the bandits, but prosecutors say Soliah was not the triggerman.

Kops testified that as he entered the bank he heard someone say, "Everyone get down on the floor," and saw a man 20 to 30 feet away holding what looked like a rifle or shotgun.

The man he referred to was standing in about the same spot where two prosecution witnesses testified Tuesday they saw Soliah with a shotgun.

Kops also testified he was interviewed by an FBI agent last October and was shown a photo of the 5-8 Soliah. He told jurors that he thought then that there was a "resemblance" between the picture and himself.

Salvatori robbery suspects

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Police say they have turned up $250,000 in items believed taken from the home of industrialist Henry Salvatori last Feb. 25.

The loot, some recovered around Chicago, includes a large quantity of silverware, police said Wednesday.

Investigators said masked bandits held the 74-year-old industrialist and his wife at gunpoint and ransacked their Bel-Air estate. During the holdup, Salvatori tried to grab a pistol he had hidden in a drawer, and was slightly injured in a scuffle for the weapon.

Police said two 20-year-old Azusa men — James Edward Bowell and Raymond E. Knaeble — were arrested last month and booked for investigation of robbery in the Salvartori case.

Osteopathy college senior training at Park Ave. Hospital

Senior students from Midwestern osteopathic colleges are now entering practical clinical training the clerkship program at Park Avenue Hospital, Pomona.

Mark Schneider, a student at Kirksville College of Osteopathic Medicine in Missouri, has started a six-week rotating serivce, working with staff physicians and surgeons in the hospital and medical offices.

The program offers the student clinical experience before, as a graduate, he enters his year of intern training preliminary to licensing requirements.

Schneider is a former resident of Los Angeles and plans to locate his family and future practice in this area.

Dr. Richard Eby, director of clerkship training programs at the hospital, was granted approval of this combined hospital-office program last year by the osteopathic colleges in Kirksville and Kansas City, Mo., and Des Moines, Iowa.

The program is fully booked already for the next 1½ years and will become a part of the clinical training program of the proposed California Osteopathic College currently being established.

West Point was the focal point of the treason of Benedict Arnold. Arnold was given command of the West Point fortifications on Aug. 3, 1780. For more than a year however, he had been secretly negotiating with the British. Once in command he arranged with Sir Henry Clinton to turn over West Point for 20,000 pounds. Maj. John Andre, the British officer with whom he had been dealing, was captured and Arnold's plot was revealed. On Sept. 25, Arnold fled to a British warship and from that day fought on the side of the enemy, The World Almanac notes.

Townsend defends Kaiser effort in smog dispute

San Bernardino County Supervisor Robert Townsend has criticized statistics released recently that indicate that Kaiser Steel Corp. in Fontana is the leading polluter among Southern California industries.

He did not question the accuracy of the report issued by the Southern California Air Pollution District, but did note the raw figures are misleading for various reasons and do require interpretation.

"First of all, no consideration was given to the type of industry involved. Kaiser does produce a substantial amount of atmospheric contamination but it also prevents more than twice as much as it emits and ranks high in the amount of pollution controlled," he said.

Townsend declared it unfair to single out Kaiser as a "criminal" when the plant is either within existing regulations or operating under an approved variance.

The supervisor also reported that industrial sources of pollution are not the major cause of smog and that more than 70 per cent of the air contamination in San Bernardino County is the result of automobiles.

"I'm not saying we should ignore Kaiser or any other industrial source of pollution and we're not. But it's about time we pointed the finger at the real culprit and took effective action to remedy the situation," said Townsend.

L.A. black endorses Carter

LOS ANGELES (AP) — City Councilman Dave Cunningham has endorsed Democratic presidential hopeful Jimmy Carter after a telephone call with him.

Cunningham said Tuesday Carter had reassured him his comments about preserving the ethnic purity of neighborhoods had been misinterpreted.

Cunningham is the first black public official here to speak up for Carter since the former Georgia governor said last week that, although he would enforce open-housing laws, he opposed federal action to destroy "ethnic purity" of neighborhoods.

He later apologized for his choice of words, but said his views were unchanged.

Cunningham said, "I don't think it's an important issue."

He said he asked Carter his feelings about federal legislation that provides an opportunity to develop low- and moderate-income housing in scattered sites.

"He indicated to me, personally and as late as Monday morning," Cunningham said, "that he was in support of the legislation."

Jet taking off strikes hyena, forced to land

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — A 747 jumbo jet carrying 379 persons to Frankfurt, West Germany, hit a hyena on take off at Nairobi airport early Tuesday and was forced to make an emergency landing at the airport nearly two hours later, British Airways reported.

And airline statement said no one was injured.

One of the jumbo's 18 tires burst and slight fuselage damage was reported.

The pilot, Capt. F. Eastman circled Nairobi airport to dump fuel before landing the plane.

The airport is near Nairobi National Park, a 44-square-mile preserve where African big game animals roam freely. The runway, eight miles from central Nairobi, was a favorite spot for professional lion-hunters a generation ago.

Teacher is his own tailor

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Dan Hunt is a tailor. His own, to be precise.

Hunt, a 31-year-old high school English teacher, started sewing several years ago to widen the variety of clothes in his closet. He took tailoring classes at a fabric shop and at one time had a full wardrobe of self-made clothes.

He will have to start all over again, however. He has lost 98 pounds, ending up a trim 172-pounder.

Woman linked to bar slaying case is now unable to speak

Mrs. Evelyn Miriam Terrell, who sat mute during a two-day preliminary hearing of murder charges against her and Cleveland Lyle Clerk, lost her ability to speak as the result of having seen bartender William M. Hyland killed by a blast from a shotgun, a psychiatrist testified.

The psychiatrist, Dr. Thomas J. Meyers of Pasadena, described Mrs. Terrell as a chronic schizophrenic who suffered hysterical blockage of her speech as the result of witnessing the slaying in a Pomona tavern.

Mrs. Terrell, a divorcee, has remained mute since she and Clark were arrested late the night of March 8, the night of the killing. She has been confined in the infirmary of Sybil Brand Institute, the women's county jail.

Dr. Meyers, who examined her there, testified in Pomona Municipal Court that she never spoke to him, but that he eventually was able to communicate with her by writing. Even then, he told Judge Robert C. Gustaveson, the 34-year-old woman did not always tell the truth. One example the psychiatrist gave was Mrs. Terrell's denial that she had children. Actually, she has two, he said.

Another was her statement that she had been confined to a mental institution for two weeks when actually she had been a patient for several years.

Dr. Meyers said Mrs. Terrell is a "suggestible, passive person" unable to understand what is going on around her. He said she also is unable to understand the charges against her or to cooperate in her defense with an attorney.

Earlier, witnesses who had known the woman for the last couple of months, testified that Mrs. Terrell smiled a lot, seldom spoke and sometimes did not reply to a question until several minutes had passed.

One, Frank Richardson Jr. of Pomona, said that Clark, a 6 foot 4, 200 pounder, "smacked her" a couple of times and when he did, she would "curl up into a little ball and not cry or anything." Clark hit her once for asking him if he was ready to leave, Richardson said.

At the close of the hearing, her attorney, George Nahlbach, argued for dismissal of the murder charge and an additional charge that Mrs. Terrell was an accessory after the fact. He compared her to "a puppy dog" which simply followed Clark around. She was not capable of participating actively in the slaying of the bartender, Nahlbach said.

He succeeded in gaining dismissal of the murder charge but Gustaveson ordered Mrs. Terrell into Superior Court later this month to answer the charge that she aided Clark after the shooting. Clark was bound over on the murder charge and both remained in custody in lieu of bail.

Ruling by court keeps Viet mom from her son, 4

MASON CITY, Iowa (AP) — A distraught Vietnamese mother, fighting to regain custody of her family, lashed out in anguish after two Iowa Supreme Court justices ruled that her son must temporarily remain with the American couple that wants to adopt him.

The ruling was the second victory for Johnny and Bonnie Nelson of Forest City. They have appealed a district court ruling that Doan "Ben" Van Vinh, 4, should be returned to his mother.

The temporary custody is until the full court rules in the case.

"I want the people in this country to hear my voice," shouted Doan Thi Hoang Ahn in a telephone interview from her Great Falls, Mont., home.

"Let my boy grow under my hand. The Nelson family don't allow me to do that. The longer he is with them, they teach him to hate the Vietnamese, to hate South Vietnam, to hate his mother."

She said she couldn't understand how an American court could "do this to my poor baby."

The Nelsons took the boy into their home last May and started adoption proceedings.

Nelson, 32, said the ruling "was a miracle. We prayed for a miracle. We asked our pastor at the Forest City Evangelical Lutheran Church to have the congregation pray for this last Sunday."

Nelson said he had also prayed "for permanent custody of our son, but God said no — not yet."

Iowa Supreme Court Chief Justice C. Edwin Moore said permanent custody of Ben would probably be decided in late June, "or possibly July or August."

Noting the 1½-year backlog of cases facing the court, he added: "The welfare of the child" demands that the custody fight "be settled at the earliest possible moment."

Mrs. Ahn, 33, had surrendered her seven children to the Denver-based Friends of Vietnam Children orphanage in Saigon a year ago. Communist troops were approaching and the last Americans were leaving.

She said she wanted only to have her children flown out of Saigon on Operation Babylift.

Mrs. Ahn escaped in a fishing boat later and the search for her seven children began. Four are with her in Great Falls, one is reportedly with a family in France and she can't find another.

At the initial March hearing, District Court Judge L.E. Plummer said Mrs. Ahn committed a "selfless act" and that she made "the ultimate maternal sacrifice for the safety of her children."

Judge Plummer said the Nelsons should surrender custody of Ben on April 1, but they appealed and Tuesday's hearing date was set to determine temporary custody until the Supreme Court acts.

Mrs. Ahn's attorney, Herman Folkers of Mason City, said the woman identified Be as her son at the original custody hearing by referring to an ear infection that resulted from a grenade explosion. She also showed family photographs with Ben in them.

Ed Boyle, attorney for the Nelsons, said the boy is well adjusted in their home. Nelson is public relations director at Waldorf College.

"I get tears not from my eyes, but from my heart," Mrs. Ahn said. "I just patient."

"God is in control," said Nelson.

Germany's Schmidt will visit U.S.

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Chancellor Helmut Schmidt will pay a five-day official visit to the United States in July at President Ford's invitation, the government announced Tuesday.

A statement said Schmidt will meet Ford and senior government members in Washington during the July 15-20 visit, whose timing will enable the chancellor to witness the climax of the U.S. Bicentennial celebrations.

S.B. mayor to head transportation unit

Mayor W. R. Holcomb of San Bernardino has been elected chairman of Omnitrans, the central coordinator and operator of public transportation in San Bernardino County.

Holcomb was elected to a one-year term by the new public transit agency's board, composed of the five county supervisors and a delegate from each of the 10 participating cities, Tuesday night.

Supervisor Dennis Hansberger was elected vice chairman on a motion by Mayor Harold Hayes of Montclair, chairman of the West Valley Transit Service Authority.

Omnitrans, formed through a joint powers agreement between the county and the 10 cities, is the culminations of two years of heated debate ond reorganization for a single transit operator. Formation of the agency was prompted by the federal government's insistence that a single agency represent transit operations within the county. The federal Urban Mass Transit Authority had been withholding $1.7 million in federal transit dollars until county agencies reached accord.

Omnitrans will own and operate all buses and equipment formerly owned by the county and San Bernardino Transit System as of July 1. Paul Marsh, now general manager of SBTS, will become general manager.

U.S.-Russ naval chess game

WASHINGTON (AP) — A series of U.S. and Soviet naval moves and countermoves in the eastern Mediterranean has resulted in a buildup of warships off Lebanon.

The Pentagon acknowledges that 10 ships of the U.S. 6th Fleet, including the aircraft carrier Saratoga, are in those waters. U.S. officials refused to discuss Soviet ship movements. But sources report the Russians have sent four surface warships, several submarines, an intelligence-gathering vessel and a number of auxiliary ships into the same area about 400 miles from Lebanon.

The United States has attempted to picture as a normal operation its concentration of naval power within a day's steaming time of the Lebanese coast.

However, the Soviet Communist party newspaper Pravda has linked the U.S. naval presence with the crisis in Lebanon. On April 8, the newspaper warned against any U.S. military intervention there. The article was signed "Observer," which usually means a high-ranking Kremlin authority.

The buildup began in late March with the arrival off Lebanon of a seven-ship U.S. naval task group headed by the helicopter carrier Guadalcanal. The group included several amphibious ships carrying a Marine battalion of about 1,700 men.

Pentagon sources said at the time that the ships were in a holding pattern in case they were needed to evacuate more than 1,400 Americans from Lebanon, wracked by a civil war between Moslems and Christians.

Within a few days, the Russians sent two guided-missile cruisers, the intelligence ship and a minesweeper to shadow the U.S. amphibious group. Later, several more Soviet warhips and submarines appeared.

Noting this, the United States then ordered the carrier Saratoga and two escorting destroyers from Split, Yugoslavia, to positions in the vicinity of the U.S. amphibious group. The Saratoga carries about 90 warplanes.

Coin collecting fashionable

PRAGUE (AP) — New 10-heller and 20-heller (1-2 cents) pieces were put into circulation in Czechoslovakia in 1974, but though several millions were minted few seemed to find their way into circulation.

A state bank official complained it had become fashionable to buy a vase and drop in the coins until the vase was filled.

WILLOWBROOK INSURANCE TO OPEN APRIL 19 WITH A UNIQUE SERVICE

Willowbrook Insurance to the West End will open its' doors April 19, 1976. Willowbrook offers a unique service, according to its' owner, Ms. Donna Jermain. It is designed to meet the needs of those who have Medicare insurance. Should they have a supplemental carrier, that too will be processed if so desired. An appointment may be made, but is not necessary and each individual will be given personalized attention, regarding their particular Medicare claims.

After an extended period of time employed as a medical secretary, Ms. Jermain noted there was a definite problem concerning many of the Medicare benefits. Often they are required to submit their own claims for processing and for many this is a difficult task. Ms. Jermain intends to make it as pleasant and simple for the Medicare recipient as possible.

Willowbrook is limited to those 65 and over, blind or disabled.

Willowbrook presents no conflict with existing programs sponsored by Federal agencies. There were some problems involved in ascertaining the feasibility of establishing this service. Congressman Jim Lloyd was very instrumental in assisting Ms. Jermain, along with Ms. Kathleen Roseler, of the Department of Rehabilitation in Ontario. In determining the legality of an independent service involving Medicare claims, Ms. Jermain had numerous contacts with Mr. Richard Greenberg, manager of the Medicare Correspondence-Interview Department, who demonstrated keen interest in the purpose of Willowbrook.

Willowbrook is located at 325 N. 2nd St., Upland. The phone is 985-0877.

Eight accused of welfare cheating

Eight West End residents accused of welfare fraud were booked in the West End Sheriff's Jail today following a two month San Bernardino County welfare fraud investigation.

A total of 23 arrest warrants was issued by the San Bernardino County courts as a result of a joint investigation by the sheriff's detective bureau and the Department of Public Social Services in cooperation with the District Attorney's office.

"By and large, last night's arrests are due to failure to report outside income or the inaccurate reporting of wages earned. A new computer match system which compares earnings reported by those receiving public assistance with amounts on record in Sacramento speeds up the investigative process immensely," said Fred Thies, director of the county's Department of Public Social Services.

Thies emphasized that the great majority of families getting public assistance are honest. "Fraud represents less than one per cent of our caseload which is over 17,000 families at the present time," he said.

Seventeen of the arrested were accused with felony fraud which could have a sentence of one to 10 years in state prison. The remaining defendants face sentences of up to a year in county jail. A total of over $45,000 is involved in these fraud charges, Thies said.

Arrested on felony charges in the investigation in West End were Judith Lenora Hardin, 35, of 1360 N. Virginia St., Apartment D, Ontario; Martha Francis Candelaria, 25, of 1900 S. Campus Ave., Apartment 18F, Ontario; Marie Louis Scott, 36, of 1319 El Dorado St., Ontario; and Lucille Stella Soto, 30, of 13165 Second St., Chino.

Others arrested were Laura Jane Daniels, 27, of 823 N. Campus Ave., Upland; Flora Mae Hunt, 38, of 4477 Princeton St., Ontario; Rochell Jean Kilmer, 37, of 7202 Garnet St., Alta Loma; and Angelina Louise Quintanar, 28, of 10876 Rose Ave., Alta Loma.

Chino boy, 11, wins PB contest —and a spot in L.A. ice show

Mike G. Mallul, an 11-year-old Chino boy, has been named grand prize winner of the Progress Bulletin's Ice Capades Coloring Contest.

Mike, a fifth grader at St. Paul's Lutheran School in Pomona, will receive eight tickets to the Ice Capades at Los Angeles.

He also will be seated with Yogi Bear on the ice during Yogi's birthday party performance on April 24.

Nine other top prize winners in the contest will each receive four tickets for the Ice Capades. They are Richie Jimenez, 7, Christopher Hall, 4, and Gina L. Ghidotti, 5, all of Chino; Eric Wong, 10 and Norma McGee, 9, both of Claremont; Tina Kethcum, 8, and Norma Durbin, 12, both of Pomona; David Van Sickle, 6, of La Verne; and Tammy Elliott, 9, of Montclair.

More than 400 entries were received in the contest which ran from March 15 to April 5. Children entering had to color a birthday cake with various Ice Capades characters on top and around the cake. The characters will all be performing at the Sports Arena on April 24.

Judging in the contest was based on artistic effect, creativity and neatness.

VA drops claim against college

Chaffey College does not have to repay the Veterans Administration $115,000 which the government claimed was owed.

The charges of overpayment to the college for veterans taking some nongraded adult education courses were dropped when evidence indicated the college had not deliberately attempted to defraud the government, a spokesman said.

Larry Moore, veteran coordinator at Chaffey College, said the confusion resulted because of an earlier misunderstanding between the college and the Veterans Administration.

"When the veteran students were first enrolled at the college, it was with the understanding that these nongraded courses were accepted as part of the program," Moore said.

"The $115,000 was paid to 32 veterans enrolled in these classes. But after a series of formal and informal hearings between the college, the Veterans Administration and adjusters, there was no indication of fraud.

"Therefore, the college was notified last week that the funds do not have to be repaid."

Moore added that Chaffey College recently had a standard compliance survey of the records of 50 of the 3,500 veterans now attending the college. This audit by the government showed only a few discrepancies, which are now being adjusted, Moore reported.

No Chaffey College student has been denied his veterans benefits as the result of any college audit, the coordinator added.

Cucamonga bar robbed by two men

Two out-of-state men arrested early today are accused of breaking into a Cucamonga bar, striking the sleeping bar owner on the head with a pipe and stealing cash from his wallet, said West End Sheriff's deputies.

Carl Muroe Osbor, 24, of Florida and Michael Robert Howard of Detroit, Mich., were booked in the West End Jail on suspicion of robery and burglary. Bail was set at $25,000 for each.

Prior to their arrests, Osbor had been involved in a fiery traffic collision on the San Bernardino Freeway below the Sultana Avenue underpass. The men told deputies that their car had been towed away and they were left on foot.

Sheriff's Deputy Barry Lavoie reported that Gerald "Scotty" Barker, 55, owner of Scotty's Bar at 8898 Eighth St., Cucamonga, called deputies to report that two men had just broken into the bar about 3 a.m., struck him over the head and robbed him.

Lavoie said that Barker, who refused medical attention for a one-inch cut on his head, gave deputies a description of the two men and a list of items taken.

About two hours later Lavoie and Deputy Steve Moran stopped two men matching the description of the robbers walking near Foothill Boulevard and Vineyard Avenue. Lavoie said they found several packs of cigarettes, a watch and some cash in the men's possession.

Deputies believe that two men entered the bar by prying open a lock and were surprised to find the bar owner sleeping in a back room. The bar owner may have been struck in the head with an electrical pipe. Barker later told deputies the robbers overlooked a cash receipt bag laying next to the cash register.

Osbor escaped with minor injuries when his car collided with another on the San Bernardino Freeway east of Sultana Avenue, Ontario area about 6 p.m.

Osbor's car burst into flames and passing motorists stopped and pulled him out.

The highway patrol said a vehicle driven by Osbor, ran into the rear of a car driven by Michael L. Kline, 20, of Newton Center, Mass. Osbor's car caught fire and he was rescued by passing motorists. He was treated at San Antonio Community Hospital and released. Kline was hurt slightly but refused medical aid.

Pomona Superior Court judge is nominated for federal post

Pomona Superior Court Judge Robert M. Takasugi has been nominated by President Ford for a federal judgeship, it was announced today.

Takasugi, 45, of Montebello, has been assigned to the Pomona court since last summer when he was promoted to Superior Court after serving as a judge in the East Los Angeles Municipal Court since 1973. He originally was appointed by Gov. Reagan and elevated by Gov. Brown. He was in private practice prior to his original appointment.

Takasugi's name was submitted to the White House by California Democratic Sens. Alan Cranston and John V. Tunney. If approved by the Senate, Takasugi would succeed E. Avery Cary, who resigned Dec. 31 as a U.S. judge for the California Central District.

Takasugi is an alumnus of UCLA and of the USC Law School. He is a former legal counsel to the Japanese-American Citizens League and is married and has two children.

The Takasugi family moved from Tacoma, Wash., to Los Angeles after World War II. Takasugi graduated from Belmont High School in 1948 and later attended UCLA. His law studies were interrupted by military service in Japan between 1953 and 1955. He returned and obtained his law degree in 1959 at USC.

If approved, Takasugi would be the second judge of the Pomona Superior Court to become a U.S. judge. The other was Robert Firth who was named to the federal bench by then President Nixon in 1974.

2 murder charges

William Douglas Haley, 22, of Fontana and William Ammons, 24, of Ontario have been ordered to appear in West Valley Superior Court for trial in connection with the heroin overdose death of a 58-year-old Ontario man.

Haley and Ammons were charged with murder by Ontario police who investigated the death of Grattus Cloud of 1738 E. Fourth St. Cloud, according to a San Bernardino County Coroner's Office autopsy report, died of an overdose of heroin.

The two men charged with the murder were brought before West Valley Municipal Court Judge David Merriam last week for a preliminary hearing. Judge Merriam, after hearing testimony in the case, Wednesday ordered Haley and Ammons to appear in Superior Court for trial. They will be arraigned there on April 28.

According to California law, anyone who furnishes heroin, a dangerous drug to another, that ultimately results in that person's death may be charged with second degree murder. The number of cases brought to trial under the heroin death law in California has been few.

In the Cloud case, police learned from witnesses that Cloud had been threatened by the defendants after he refused to pay them some money. Cloud was discovered in the back of one of the defendant's cars unconscious on March 13. Cloud was rushed to Ontario Hospital where he later died. Police said they found evidence of drugs in a laundry room of the apartments managed by Cloud and his wife.

Walnut civic center site being considered

Purchase of 9.44 acres for a civic center site is being considered by the Walnut City Council.

Councilmen have instructed their new city manager, Vern Lawson, to look into the possibility of the purchase of the property on Lemon Avenue between Vejar and Carrey Roads.

Currently owned by an out-of-state bank, the property formerly was part of the Woods family estate.

City council members also ratified appointment of new members of the Planning Commission and Parks and Recreation Commission.

Each councilman appoints one member each of the two commissioners. Not all appointments had been received when the council met Wednesday night because some councilmen wanted to give more thought to selections.

Those named to the Planning Commission were Jack Gunn, by Richard Laughter; Bill Barnes, re-appointed by Joe Hahn; and Neal Smith, by Bill Cotten.

Park and Recreation Commission appointees were George Hudson by Cotten; Harlan Keck by Laughter, Rick Kasel by Hahn; Jeanie McCune reappointed by Bill Wentworth, and Jim Peterson by Paul Williams.

Diana Higdon, who was acting city clerk before Vern Lawson was appointed city manager and city clerk this week, was named interim city treasurer. She will serve until the city names a new administrative assistant to Lawson's former job. The new administrative assistant also will be city treasurer.

Councilmen approved a new car and a $16,000 a year salary for Lawson.

Woman in slaying placed on probation

A La Verne woman was granted probation Wednesday for voluntary manslaughter in the slaying Sept. 22 of an off-duty Los Angeles motorcycle policeman.

Mrs. Frances Lou Staats, 37, was placed on probation for five years by Pomona Superior Court Judge Robert M. Takasugi who first sentenced her to state prison, but suspended that sentence.

Conditions of probation included orders that she pay a $1,000 fine and obtain psychiatric care. Takasugi said she would be allowed to deduct the cost of her psychiatric treatment from the fine, however.

The victim, officer Robert E. Kearns, 41, died in the emergency room of Pomona Valley Community Hospital after having been shot in the chest as he and Mrs. Staats sat in his car in front of the hospital early that morning. Kearns was shot with his off-duty weapon, a short-barreled, .38-caliber revolver.

Police said Kearns had taken Mrs. Staats, a divorcee, to the hospital for treatment of a possible drug overdose. They said the couple argued in the car and the policeman was shot with his own gun during a struggle. Kearns was separated from his wife at the time.

Mrs. Staats pleaded guilty to manslaughter last February.

Terrorism backfires

In the mistaken belief that it will result in the improved treatment of Jews in the Soviet Union, some American Jews have launched a campaign of terror against Soviet citizens and Soviet offices in New York City.

The campaign differs from that waged by Palestinian terrorists against Israel only in that, so far, no one has been hurt in New York. It is purely a matter of luck, however, that in one of the most recent episodes — two shots fired from a highpowered rifle into the Soviet Union's United Nations mission on East 67th Street — did not hit anyone.

About all that has been accomplished by a group calling itself the Jewish Armed Resistance, which claims responsibility for these acts, has been to make life hell for American diplomatic personnel and their families in Moscow. The Soviet government, which is unable to believe that the attacks in New York do not have the sanction of the U.S. government, has retaliated with hundreds of late-night harassing telephone calls to embassy personnel and at least two bomb threats.

Of all the people in the world, Jews should know that terrorism is a self-defeating tactic which only hardens the attitudes of one's enemies while destroying whatever moral ground the terrorist claims to act upon.

The Israelis have often pointed out that no Arab government has ever condemned the terrorism of the Palestinian guerrilas or expressed regret at the murders of innocent men, women and children. While the Israeli government certainly has no control over nor bears any responsibility for the actions of misguided Jews in this country, it would not be amiss if it were to denounce in no uncertain terms the maniacs of the Jewish Armed Resistance.

Polish last laugh

The best Polish joke of all is on those who for some reason have the idea that this brave people is wanting in the smarts department.

After all, the Poles were intelligent enough to force their Communist rulers to abandon the collectivization of agriculture back in the 1950s before Poland went the way of chronically food-short Russia. Now they're sending their young people to this country to learn U.S. farming methods.

The first 100 farmers from Poland arrived on these shores at the end of March to spend 13 months working on American farms. The young men and women, who are between the ages of 20 and 30, are the vanguard of 200 more who will come here during the next three years under the auspices of 4-H Clubs and thanks to a grant from Massey-Ferguson, the farm machinery manufacturer.

They apparently have good reason to. According to Barron's financial weekly, despite the abandonment of collectivization the Polish prime minister recently informed the parliament that Polish farms would be unable to feed the country for as far ahead as he could see.

After an initial period of intensive language instruction at the Experiment in International Living center in Brattleboro, Vt., they will be deployed to farms in Pennsylvania, New York, Massachusetts, Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Illinois and Iowa.

On their return home, the farmers are expected to help establish farms based on the American model. There is nothing dumb about that.

Work for tomorrow

Dear Editor:

We are junior high students at La Puerta School in Claremont. Our humanities class is highly concerned about how the new-house building will affect Claremont.

Claremont is known for its old houses, streets brushed with leaves, trees and colleges, blue skies, green grass, orange and lemon groves, open fields.

But soon, Claremont will be new houses instead of the groves and open spaces. More people, more pollution, crowded streets, not quiet. The gutters will be full of trash. There will be no more leaves. Musty, grey skies, a depressing town. More cars, more need for money.

Claremont won't be the same good ol' Claremont we know and love. Some people moved here for the real Claremont. Some of us have lived here for over ten years. We've seen Claremont change, have felt it change. We fear the mountains will become more and more hidden with smog.

Some very nice looking houses here in Claremont were the first houses ever built here in Claremont. Now they may be torn down and recycled into modern homes.

Lots of fields around here have sentimental value — kite-flying, pathways, smells and sights. There will soon be houses there instead.

A lot of people feel very strongly against this; we do. And we care. We are a part of Claremont. We feel that the people of today must work for the people of tomorrow. — Lisa Jeffers, Scott Nonin, John Carroll, Katie Meamber, Jan Fotie, Cindy Wories, Nicole Rosenberg, Brian Jerlow

Postcard registration

Dear Editor:

This letter is in regard to the postcard voter registration bill (H.R. 11552).

Frankly, I find it difficult to imagine a more foolish idea than to attempt to register voters by mail and especially at the federal level.

The potential for fraud under such conditions is enormous; and the likelihood of massive confusion, resulting in many voters being disenfranchised, is almost certain.

The cost of the operation alone is reason enough to oppose it. (Why spend tens of millions of dollars on people who are too indifferent or lazy to go to their nearest fire station and register to vote?)

In saner times, this legislation would have been laughed into oblivion. Today, it is being seriously considered, and could become law unless opposition from the grassroots become visible. Write to your Senators and Representative and urge them to oppose the postcard registration bill. — Victor T. Reid, Claremont

Nixon rewarded his friends

WASHINGTON — In 1973, then-President Richard Nixon made a multibillion-dollar decision, keeping it as quiet as possible, to sell off strategic metals from the national stockpile.

We have now established that the decision was followed by pressure from the White House to sell valuable minerals to Nixon's friends and contributors.

Officially, the White House explained in 1973 that the huge strategic stockpile was no longer needed for the nation's security. There is now reason to believe Nixon's real motive was to reward his friends in the metals industry.

Following Nixon's orders to reduce the stockpile, the General Services Administration (GSA) has sold more than $3 billion worth of metals. Most of the scarce metals have gone to the industrial giants such as Alcoa, Bethlehem Steel, Englehardt Industries, General Electric, Kaiser, Reynolds Metals, U.S. Steel and Westinghouse.

The sales came at a time when strategists were warning that the United States will run short of many vital minerals in another decade. At the same time, the countries that own the mineral deposits, taking their cue from the oil potentates, have been forming cartels to jack up the prices.

The alarmed strategists have charged that the national stockpile is dangerously depleted. This has resulted in a top-secret study, at the direction of the National Security Council, to determine whether the stockpile should be replenished.

Although the secret, interagency task force hasn't completed the study, we can report they have tentatively concluded that stockpile levels should be raised for certain critical materials.

The United States is dangerously short, for example, of chromium, which is a critical alloy in high-strength steel. Yet the United States is dependent for its chromium on such uncertain suppliers as Rhodesia, Russia, South Africa and Turkey.

The $3 billion sale of strategic minerals, meanwhile, has the sour smell of scandal. At least some of the minerals, which were sold to U.S. corporations at bargain-basement prices, will now have to be repurchased at premium prices.

The winners were the companies; the losers will be the taxpayers. And for some companies, it appears that more than luck was involved.

Witnesses have told us that Nixon aides called former GSA chief Arthur F. Sampson, pressuring him to sell materials from the GSA stockpile to White House friends. Sampson "filtered the word" to his stockpile officials, according to our sources, that "the White House was very interested" in making certain their favorite companies could buy the critical materials.

Louis Brooks, the stockpile disposal director, received several calls from Sampson's personal aides, citing White House friends who should get favorite treatment. Our sources say that Brooks, an honest man, resisted the pressure.

Footnote: Sampson denied receiving calls from the Nixon White House or pressuring his subordinates to give special favors to Nixon's friends. Brooks told us all stockpile sales were made on merit, pursuant to GSA procedures. We have evidence of the White House pressure, however.

CONDOR CONTROVERSY: A confidential General Accounting Office (GAO) report has raised serious questions about the quality of the Condor missile which, according to the Navy, is their "most viable air-to-surface weapon system."

The Condor is an air-launched missile in the development stage. It is designed for conventional attacks on high-priority land targets protected by "intense" local defenses.

Yet the confidential study reveals that even the Pentagon is concerned because the missile is "very susceptible" to enemy defenses. Only the Navy, apparently, is really pleased with the missile. The Navy contends the Condor would normally receive the necessary tactical support to overcome the enemy defenses and that, in any event, the missile is less susceptible to enemy countermeasures than other systems.

'Marriage' of Claudine Longet

It is very difficult for anyone happily married to discuss anybody else's marital rupture without sounding smug — but let's try. Recently you and I talked about Aspen, Colo. Our concern then was with the free-and-easy sale of cocaine on any Aspen street for $75 a gram.

How the "coke bowl" was the centerpiece of swinging Aspen parties. How Aspen lawmen and doctors had tended to cover up or minimize drug-related injuries so they'd not scare away the resort's cash crop of tourists. Then came that March 21 night and the gunshot that echoed far beyond the mountains.

Actress Claudine Longet was 33 when she divorced singer Andy Williams and, with their three children, moved in with Vladimir (Spider) Sabich in his handsome home in Aspen.

They lived together for two years. They attended parties, played doubles tennis in the summer and went skiing together in the winter and her three children referred to Spider as their "stepfather."

All the accouterments of marriage without the formality of marriage. Any resort develops its own social strata — the wealthy regulars, the jet setters, the in-and-outers, the locals and the ski-bums.

Spider Sabich, former Olympic skier, dominated the professional tours in the early Seventies until two injuries restricted his career. Sabich was everybody's hero. If he called you by name, you were "in." She was less popular — considered "snobbish" by the envious and "unworthy of him" by the jealous.

But on Spider's arm she was welcome everywhere and the pair came to symbolize what the town's swingers so wanted to believe — that "informal marriage" is the social cure-all.

Now we know from her own diary that the affair was breaking up, that she had been ordered "out of the house by April 1," when she allegedly shot him to death 10 days before that deadline.

Now the local DA says there is other evidence of "unusual discord" leading up to that night. If the DA can prove that she intended to kill him it's felony manslaughter for which she could get 10 years. There'll be a pretrial hearing June 8 and this is not intended to prejudice that.

It is noteworthy, however, that this event has had a very sobering — if only temporary — effect on what has been for so many a last-resort resort. They're still puffing more than their share of pot and the cocaine market has not dried up, but Aspen insiders concede that the local free-lance lovers have lost their smugness.

As the skiing season waned, the uncommitted who'd thought they had found the formula for human harmony have lost their self-assurance.

It's much like what happened to our rebellious school-agers after the Kent State killings — when they saw with their own eyes where "do-your-own-thing" was leading.

Just in jest

If you think that old age pensions are something new, you haven't been reading the historical records too carefully; for if you had, you would know that as long ago as 1909 an old age pension bill went into effect in England. By its provisions, needy men and women above the age of 70 received from 25 cents to $1.25 a week. — But perhaps the most notable thing about that English old age pension bill, something which might well be given special consideration today by those in charge of this country's welfare aid program, was a further provision which stated that among the penalties to be inflicted for anyone making a false statement in order to obtain a pension was 6 months imprisonment at hard labor.

Another flu epidemic?

Editor's Note: During his hospitalization, top state officials are filling in for Earl G. Waters. Today his guest is Jerome A. Lackner, M.D., Director, State Department of Health.

Although it occurred less than 60 years ago, most Americans are unaware that the influenza pandemic of 1918-19 was the second worst plague this planet has ever experienced. Worldwide, there were more than 21-million fatalities, a number exceeded only by the Black Death that accounted for approximately 75-million mortalities during a four year period both in the 14th century.

At least a half million Americans perished from the flu during the World War I catastrophe with much of the impact occurring in urban areas.

In Baltimore, for example, there was a shortage of coffins. In Washington, even with cots and mattresses placed in hospital corridors there was a shortage of beds so undertakers were placed on standby to remove victims as fast as they died and so make room for new patients. In Chicago, there were not enough hearses so trolley cars were draped with black ribbons and served as substitutes. In Queens, so many grave diggers were stricken that bodies lay unburied until city engineers and bulldozers were pressed into service.

So it did happen here — and could again. That is why I hope the Congress will take favorable action on President Ford's proposal that the monies required be made available to develop, manufacture and distribute enough of a new vaccine that every person in the USA, who so desires, may enjoy protection against the so-called swine flu that has been relatively dormant since 1920.

I am not an alarmist. I point out that I have no reason to assume that a flu epidemic will come next winter — but the possibility exists. I similarly have no reason to assume that my home will burn down — but I carry fire insurance on my belongings.

Agreeing with me that there is need for flu insurance is Dr. James Chin, who serves as chief of the State Department of Health's Infectious Disease Section.

One of the nation's foremost authorities on communicable diseases, Dr. Chin is aware that a new strain of influenza may appear, disappear and never reappear again. He is not predicting a raging epidemic either, but nevertheless, this time he asks, "Can we chance it"?

If we cannot, then we need to start preventive action now, for a three to four months head start will be required to ensure the availability of adequate vaccine supplies when the flu season starts again next autumn. And there must be enough vaccine on hand to safeguard everyone who seeks protection rather than concentrate as we have in the past on the chronically ill, those vulnerable to respiratory ailments and the elderly.

For although in recent years influenza has been viewed as an ailment that hits senior citizens hardest, this may not be true of swine flu. To the contrary, if you are old enough to have survived the World War I epidemic your body probably contains more swine flu antibodies than do those of younger persons.

As a result, there are only a few people who, next October or November, should not seek protection through innoculation. For example, since the vaccine will be developed from chicken eggs, persons with egg allergies might be wise to pass it up as should those, of course, who would undergo religious conflict.

Ann Landers

Keep eyes peeled for evidence

Dear Ann Landers: Yesterday, as my mother and I walked down the street (we live in Hollywood, Fla.), we encountered several people looking skyward and grinning. We glanced up and saw a plane carrying a huge banner tail that read, "I love you, Jim. Get a divorce."

My mother laughed and said, "Isn't it crazy what some people will do to attract attention! It's probably an advertisement." I managed a weak chuckle, but didn't think it was very funny.

My husband's name is Jim and he has been awfully cool these last few months. That was no ad, Ann. Someone was trying to tell somebody something.

I finally tracked down the name of the company that owns the plane. It is enclosed. Will you please find out who paid for that message? I can't risk going to them directly, and I am — Worried Stiff

Dear W.S.: Sorry, dear, I don't do spy work. Keep your eyes peeled for evidence on the home front and take it from there.

Dear Ann Landers: I have started to write to you many times, but somehow my letters never reached the mailbox. When I read the one from the girl who was madly in love at 14, I knew I had to mail this one.

I, too, was in love at 14. From the 8th grade through the 12th, I was just plain ape over the guy. I dated a few others, but never gave myself a chance to like any of them. I wouldn't listen when friends told me I was being used.

I figured Mr. Dreamboat loved me best, because every time he'd have a fight with his latest heart-throb he'd come back to me and we'd pick up where we left off. Now I realize I was a donkey and he was a heel.

At 18, I "woke up and smelled the coffee," as you say. I met a great guy who had everything Mr. Dreamboat had — plus integrity and character. Twice last month I ran into Mr. D.B. and it was like I'd never known him. So please, Ann, tell the 14-year-old that if she's smart she'll hang loose and get the crazy idea out of her head that there's only one guy in the world for her. — Ask Me, I Know

Dear You: Well said. But no one listens until she's ready.

Dear Ann Landers: The nerve of that woman attacking you because you said "DO" the dishes. Then she went on to make fun of you because you came from Iowa!

Tell the loudmouth that the whole bit started the day the bride said "I do." From that moment forward, she agreed to DO the dishes, DO the laundry, DO the diapers, and do just about every other damned thing that needed doing — including being nice to his mother and the rest of his stuck-up relatives. — For You All The Way

Dear For Me: Thanks for the lift. I needed that.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband passed away in 1972. A very fine man who lost his wife two years ago has been quite attentive. I never thought I'd care to marry again, but he's giving me second thoughts.

Mr. X is self-employed (doesn't need my money), nice looking, and my married children think he's wonderful. The only problem: he is ridiculously superstitious. Does this mean he's a little wacky, or slightly ignorant? — No Offense Meant

Dear N.O.M.: Many bright (and stable) people are superstitious. The gentleman sounds like a promising "prospect." Knock on wood, honey.

Two brothers backed Columbus

History, somehow ignores Martin and Vicente Pinzon, more's the pity. Those two brothers owned and captained the Pinta and the Nina, the ships that accompanied Christopher Columbus on the Santa Maria during the New World discovery voyage. It wasn't Spain's Queen Isabella who put up the most money for that trip. It was Martin and Vicente. They were the bigger financial backers, contributing two of the ships as well as the costs of sailing them. Columbus was the fleet commander, all right. His pay ran about $300 a year. Martin and Vicente each got only approximately $160 a year. And the crewmen under all three of them made do with something in the neighborhood of $2.50 a month each. It's true that Columbus was the conversationalist who won the Queen's official sanction. But the bread-and-butter boys, the Pinzons, were the real worthies who came up with most of the floating stock and the bodies.

THE CHINESE 'MA'

Q. "In Chinese, too, doesn't Ma' mean mother?"

A. In Mandarin it does. And it also means horse, depending on how you sing it.

The livlier the animal, the faster the heartbeat, right? Usually. But not in the case of the hare and the rabbit. Figure the quick hare has a heartbeat of 64 per minute. The beat of the slower rabbit runs 200 per minute.

An eighth of the people in this country have to get rid of their own garbage. They live in places where the boys with the compacting trucks or whatever just don't show up.

ALLIGATORS AND PUMPKINS

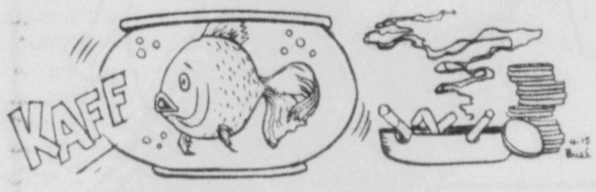
Was reported that alligators are native to only two places in this world — the Gulf Coast of the United States and China's Yangtze River. What's also true is that the pumpkin was native both to this country and to China. Not squash, however, Even though it's of the same family as the pumpkin, it's solely North American. Mystery is why two such living things as the alligator and the pumpkin flourished in so widely separated spots, while even a family member of one of them, like the squash, failed to travel until modern times. Pretty profound puzzle. I lay awake at night sometimes, tossing, turning, thinking about it.

Studies show those college scholars in the top third of their graduating classes likewise wind up in the top third of their companies' pay scale.

As previously reported, you can figure a natural blonde may have up to 180,000 hairs on her head. Calculate a brunette at about 120,000, more or less. But how do you account for the fact that the redhead only has something in the neighborhood of 50,000?

Dr. Miller

Goldfish pooped morning after



DEAR DR. MILLER: We frequently have Sunday morning hangovers — it's our Saturday night poker parties! Recently I've noticed Frumpy, my goldfish, is less active on Sunday, too. Could that be for real or am I just imagining it? She does get less sleep Saturday night since she's right there in the room with us while the party's going on. She drinks continuously, but then she always does that if we don't give her anything different. . . She looks to me on Sundays like she coughs a lot. Silently, of course. I made that observation to my husband and he said I was ready for a tank of my own. What do you think about her Sunday behavior? — B.L.

DEAR B.L.: Frumpy Fish's fagged out Sundays could indeed be related to those Saturday sessions. Simply staying up too late probably accounts for part of the problem. More important, smoke could be contributing by poisoning her watery world. It should be noted, too (in your defense), that fish in polluted water do "cough" in an attempt to remove the pollutant-caused irritation from their gills. It might be expected the higher the degree of pollution in the water, the more "coughing" that can be expected from the poor fish.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Our 2-year-old male dog gets so overexcited around the children. We're considering having his sex glands removed. My husband's afraid this would make him fat. Would it do that? — W.D.

DEAR W.D.: It's true the neutered male would have more of a tendency to pile on pounds — if he's encouraged to. The trick is to cut back the calories at the first sign of weight gain.

DEAR DR. MILLER: When Sambo came home last night, one of his hind nails was torn off and bleeding some right at the base. It must have been very painful. How could our cat have done this? — D.S.

DEAR D.S.: Considerable violence is involved to fracture and tear away a toenail at its base. This can occur when the nail is caught in something while the cat is running or climbing, or in the process of falling (usually then it's a front claw). Such a loss can occur in a fight, or on rare occasions be the only damage from being grazed by a car. Sambo's doctor should treat such a wound. It is indeed painful.

Single diners are ostracized

For a long time, single travelers and single diners have been screaming about discrimination.

I've never had to put up with the extra charges of making a trip as a single, but I've certainly experienced the inequality of eating alone.

I am led beyond the "PLEASE WAIT FOR HOSTESS TO SEAT YOU" sign, down past the "NOT RESPONSIBLE FOR LOST ARTICLES" racks, beyond the "KEEP CLEAR OF SWINGING DOOR" and into a twilight zone that is void of laughter, voices, or for that matter any other human sounds. There, at a table the size of a coaster, I am seated between a sign that reads, "DAMES" and "EMPLOYEES ONLY."

This would be amusing were it not for the fact that one evening I actually had a woman emerge from "DAMES," drop a dime in my saucer and say, "You're almost out of soap, dear."

There are a lot of myths surrounding the single diner that I'd like to get out of the way today:

Single diners eat to get it over with and just love to sit at a counter and stare at six three-day-old cream pies in a fly-specked mirror. False.

The person who eats alone usually does so between Mondays and Thursdays. Those who come on weekends do so to make trouble. False.

The lone diner likes nothing better than to be coupled with a perfect stranger with whom she has nothing in common who keeps staring at her like she hired the matchmaker from "Fiddler on the Roof." False.

If a restaurant gets a reputation for sitting single people at the window, in full view of other people, it could mean in a few years you'll be having single people bussed into your neighborhood. False.

Maybe it's my imagination, but people react condescendingly to a person who dines alone. One man approached my table one night and said in a loud voice (like I only read lips), "Is anyone sitting in this chair?"

I looked at the empty chair a full minute, then said, "There was, but he died waiting for service."

He took the chair away from the table, returned in a few minutes and said, "You don't need your salt and pepper, do you?" I shook my head. Then he whispered, "Do you always eat alone?"

"Only when I'm lucky," I whispered back.

Cancer cure doesn't exist

DEAR DR. LAMB — I lost a daughter at age 54 years. It was 10 years ago when she died. She had cancer and the doctors she had surely put her through their butcher shop. First they took off one breast, then the other breast, still later they took out her female organs and finally they went in through her back and made a diagonal incision on each side of the spine and took out a piece of the rib to get inside and remove the glands over the kidney.

Why did they take these glands out unless they knew they were affected with cancer? A nurse told me later that they did not take all of those glands out or she would not have lived. This last operation on her back was done in September and she lived till a year after in November.

I have read in a magazine that there is a remedy under lock and key in Washington for cancer. If the AMA would let it out they could cure cancer, but they are making so much money that they wouldn't let it out. Thank you for any information you can give me on this subject.

DEAR READER — First things first. When a woman has a spread of cancer cells from the breast to other areas in the body, one of the accepted forms of treatment is to reduce the hormone supply which helps to support the growth of cancer. This is why the female organs were removed. Some patients with incurable breast cancer that has already spread can be controlled for some length of time by removal of the female organs.

The same thing can be said about the removal of the glands over the top of the kidney. These glands also produce female hormones after the ovaries have been removed. If they were totally removed the doctors probably gave her a replacement of the other hormones that she needed that are formed by the adrenal cortex. The whole idea was to decrease the body's formation of female hormones by these glands and the ovaries so that the cancer cells spread throughout the body would not continue to grow. These glands were not removed because they were thought to have cancer but rather because of the influence of female hormones on the spread of cancer.

You have certainly been reading a lot of hogwash judging from the rest of your letter. There is no known cure for cancer under lock and key in Washington or anywhere else for that matter. The surest way the doctors would have of making money from cancer patients would be to have a good cure for it. Such published garbage is just exemplary of the widespread paranoia that exists in certain segments of our society. People who write these things prey upon the lack of knowledge of the general public and are guilty of doing a public disservice. It is an evil thing to spread such malicious gossip about the treatment of such a serious illness as cancer.

Anyone who reads those kinds of magazines should discontinue his subscriptions and not allow himself to be exposed to such hogwash from malicious gsssip about the treatment of such a serious illness as cancer.

Anyone who reads those kinds of magazines should discontinue his subscriptions and not allow himself to be exposed to such hogwash from malicious, unethical people. Judging from the statements you have quoted such magazines can do nothing except provide information that may well be seriously detrimental to your health.

For information on female hormones send 50 cents for The Health Letter, number 5-12, Menopause. Send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Jacoby's bridge

Double sluff aids ruff one

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Old man Z who used to appear in the auction bridge columns played dummy's king of hearts. East discarded to 10 of clubs and Z remarked, "I believe R. F. Foster thought of this hand back around 1922. It is a ruff and discard hand to end all such."

Then Z overtook dummy's king of hearts with his ace, cashed two trumps and both minor suit aces. His next play was a low heart. West had to win the trick and play another heart.

Z discarded a club from his hand and a diamond from dummy. West had to lead another heart. Z chucked dummy's last low diamond, ruffed in his own hand and claimed the balance of the tricks and his contract. West had been forced to give Z a double discard first and a ruff and a discard next.

With any normal line of play the defense would collect three tricks and set the contract.

PSA bird losing its grin over financial ills

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Pacific Southwest Airlines parked a pair of practically new $20 million Lockheed L-1011 jets in the Arizona desert last summer. And there they sit, emblematic of an airline that boasts it will "get you there."

The trouble is, PSA itself is still trying to get off the ground after two disastrous management decisions that clouded the California skies.

A week before an after-taxes loss of $16.7 million was reported for 1975, an ex-pilot without the flamboyant approach of the man he succeeded took over as chief executive officer. But Bill Shimp, less colorful and more conservative than J. Floyd Andrews, has been unable to move the airline much in a month.

"We're still negotiating with Lockheed for a way to sell the other three planes," a company spokesman said of the L-1011 planes ordered in 1972. "We would like to sublease the two planes in the desert or use them on chartered flights."

At the time PSA ordered the Lockheed planes, "nobody foresaw the recession or the fuel crunch," says the spokesman.

The grinning bird also laid an egg in the decision to enter the hotel and radio broadcasting fields.

Paul C. Barkley, senior vice president of finance, is still trying to sell a radio station in San Jose and three PSA hotels—the Queen Mary in Long Beach, the San Franciscan in San Francisco and the Islandia in San Diego. For the Islandia, a buyer is trying to work out financing.

The hotel and broadcasting operations lost $8.9 million last year including expected losses from their sales, PSA's annual report said. It also reported losing $13.8 million before taxes on those properties from 1970 to 1974.

The staggering losses of California's largest home-based airline involve a write-down of $7.9 million or $14.8 million before taxes for anticipated losses on the L-1011 planes and a loss of $8.9 million or $14.9 million before taxes on its hotels and radio stations.

The loss reported for 1975 amounted to $5.24 a share and compares with a profit of $1.6 million, or 50 cents a share, reported for 1974.

Although passenger traffic is up slightly, compared with the first four months of 1975, the number of flights has fallen to about 1,000 weekly from 1,200 in 1974.

Andrews stepped out after 14 years as chief executive officer, taking the title of chairman, before PSA's directors announced "a provision for anticipated losses" on the L-1011 program.

A statement said they concluded that the jets would cost more to fly inside California than their value allowed.

Jordan switching arms deal

LONDON (AP) — Jordan's prime minister said his country is switching a multimillion dollar arms deal with the United States to the Soviet Union because the U.S. prices have more than doubled, the Times of London said Wednesday.

The Times quoted Zaid Rifai saying congressional stalling had held up approval of Jordan's order for four Hawk missile batteries and 100 Vulcan antiaircraft guns until the price reached $792 million in January.

Rifai, visiting London with King Hussein after a trip to the United States, reportedly said this was more than double the original amount which Saudi Arabia had agreed to finance for Jordan.

"The Saudis did not find it possible to finance the whole deal at the new prices, and therefore we consider the deal with the United States is off.

"The only other source which could supply an air defense system at reasonably moderate prices and with an acceptable delivery schedule was the Soviet Union," Rifai reportedly said.

Rifai said Jordan probably would have to pay $10 million to $12 million in damages for work already begun.

J.O.B.S. is the main theme of Udall campaign

Editor's Note: The following is the third of three articles on the campaign tactics and styles of the top three Democratic presidential contenders. It focuses on Rep. Morris Udall.

By DON McLEOD
AP Political Writer

Morris Udall looked straight at his audience at the Milwakee Police Training Center and declared: "The best way we can reduce crime in Milwaukee and in the nation is to give people jobs.

"People who have jobs are not the muggers, burglars and hold-up men who are causing the national crime statistics to rise," Udall said.

It was just one of countless speeches the Arizona congressman has made in his quest for the Democratic presidential nomination, but it provides some important clues to his campaign.

It wasn't the most popular line a politician could take with a police audience: telling them that conditions in society lead to crime and the best way to fight crime is to fight its causes.

But Udall also leaned hard on the need for law and order, a point he made just as strongly in Harlem a few days before.

And he told both the New York ghetto and the midwestern police department that there are no easy answers.

"The mayors and the police commissioners have the responsibility to fight crime." Udall said. "But I can assist from Washington."

Udall had been just as frank in talking about the future of Israel in a suburban New York synagogue: "No one has the solution. The best thing we can do is to hunker down and just live it out."

Another clue to Mo Udall in the Milwaukee speech is the way he brought a complex and controversial issue around to his main theme — unemployment.

"J-O-B-S. It's the centerpiece of the Morris Udall campaign," said Tom Kiley, Udall's national campaign director.

"The issue before the voters is jobs," Udall told a labor convention in Green Bay, Wis.

Everywhere he goes, Udall talks about jobs. In the inner cities it's high unemployment among minorities. In the blue collar wards it's more work and job security. In the suburbs it's higher employment as the best cure for a lagging economy.

His reception is generally friendly, although audiences occasionally seem surprised at some of his frank statements. Other listeners view his candidacy with a bit of incredulity.

"He's too nice," said a woman in the affluent New York City suburb of Scarsdale. "He'll never get in."

Recently, as the field of Democratic contenders has narrowed, Udall has turned to attacking his remaining rivals, particularly as he approached the Wisconsin primary in which he felt he had to do well to survive as a candidate. (He came in a close second to Carter.)

Even on the attack, Udall employs humor and the soft approach. In a pickup basketball game at the Milwaukee YMCA, he paused turned to the spectators and took a shot at Sen. Henry M. "Scoop" Jackson's position on defense spending.

"This is the Pentagon scoop shot," he said as he sailed the ball toward the goal. "You give it all you've got."

Later he commented, "This is the detente dribble. It only goes one way."

His criticism on another occasion was bipartisan. "If President Ford and Jimmy Carter become the candidates in the fall and abortion is an issue, all sides will be represented," he says. "There will be Ford in the middle and Carter on both sides."

(Carter was criticized after the Iowa precinct caucuses for allegedly misleading supporters on abortion. He said later he thought abortion was wrong, but did not favor passage of a constitutional amendment to prohibit it. Ford favors giving each state the power to adopt its own regulations through legislation or public vote.)

The strongest Udall outburst in quite a while came in New York as he described former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter's position on the jobs bill. "Fudge, fudge, fudge," he shouted.

But the bottom line is always jobs.

When he's attacking Jackson on defense spending, it comes down to jobs.

"We don't need B-1 bombers and Trident submarines," he said in Neenah, Wis. "We need more jobs."

"Defense spending sprees — as suggested by some in this presidential contest — actually cost jobs," he said in Stevens Point.

(Jackson has urged increasing the size of the Navy from 477 ships to over 600. He says he is opposed to the B-1 bomber program and would cut it from the defense budget.)

Environmental protection, Udall contends, is good for the unemployed. "Here in Stevens Point," he said, "environmental efforts have created jobs."

In Manitowoc the local issue is a rail ferry service about to be discontinued.

"I stand with Mayor Anthony Dufek of Manitowoc in urging all possible assistance to preserve Lake Michigan rail ferry service," Udall said. "It means the savings of jobs that would be lost."

Udall supports a bill in Congress sponsored by Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., and Rep. Augustus Hawkins, D-Calif., which proposes to create five million jobs and bring the unemployment rate down to about 3 per cent in 18 months.

Everywhere he goes, Udall makes a pitch for this bill as the answer to the jobs problem, which he pictures as the central problem of the economy.

"People in America want to work," he says at every stop, "The sun came up this morning and America went to work today. But eight million of them wanted to go to work and there wasn't any work. "The first order of business on Jan. 20 (presidential inauguration day) is going to be to put America to work."

The phrasing and emphasis may change slightly from place to place and audience to audience. But the solutions offered are the same.

To the nation's mayors, meeting in New York, Udall says the federal government should protect the major cities from financial collapse as it did for New York last winter.

Then he goes into the suburbs and says the same thing. "And I said it in George Wallace's Alabama," he reminds crowds in upstate New Yorkand agricultural midstate Wisconsin. "If New York falls, Rochester might be next, or Milwaukee or Phoenix."

Udall also talks about foreign policy, saying he agrees with efforts toward detente with the Soviet bloc but, like other administration critics, arguing that the United States isn't getting enough in the bargaining.

He praises the Ford-Kissinger approach in general terms, but again says maybe Kissinger should have gotten more in the Sinai accord, principally Egyptian agreement to negotiate directly with Israel.

As part of his economic program, Udall hits strongly at the large corporations which he accuses of controlling the economy through competition-killing monopoly.

"We're going to break 'em up," he told an election eve rally in Milwaukee. "And the big oil companies, too. What we need is some good old American competition."

Udall continues to struggle with an identity problem despite months of campaigning. One of his aides was sitting in the lobby of a New York hotel when someone noticed the campaign entourage passing through and asked what all the commotion was about.

"I'm with Congressman Morris Udall of Arizona," said the aide. And he explained still further: "He's running for president."

In another hotel a woman was told by a friend to look out for the presidential candidate. "But I don't know what he looks like," she responded.

U.S. world vehicle output hit all-time low last year

DETROIT (AP) — The United States' share of world motor vehicle output hit an all-time low last year as a severe economic recession contributed to a 10 per cent drop in domestic production, a trade journal says.

An annual survey by Ward's Automotive Reports, released Wednesday, said output in the United States accounted for 26 per cent of the 34.2 million cars, trucks and buses produced around the world in 1975. The previous low share was 28 per cent in 1974 and 1970.

The United States remained numerically the world's No. 1 producer — as it has since the birth of the industry 75 years ago — with domestic output totaling 9 million vehicles, the journal said.

Japan, which increased production 6 per cent over 1974, was second with 6.9 million units, the report said.

Ranking behind the United States and Japan in output last year, the report said, were France, 3.3 million; West Germany, 3.2 million; Soviet Union, 1.9 million; Britain, 1.65 million; Italy, 1.5 million; Brazil, 930,000; Belgium, 860,000, and Spain, 780,000.

"Montefusco has a lot of poise for a man with so little experience. He's not afraid of the batters. He goes after them with his best stuff, challenges them."

Tomorrow's Best Pitchers

What makes FAMILY WEEKLY's sports reporting so unique? When we want the scoop on what players are going to be the ones to watch, we consult the "real" experts — yesterday's superplayers. So, to usher in the baseball season, we asked nine of yesterday's best pitchers (five of them Hall-of-Famers) to select the best young pitchers from both leagues. With the new emphasis on baserunning, extra demands are being placed on pitchers. Pitching has been elevated to an athletic art; fakes and body movements are essential to keep base runners from getting big jumps. Not only do they have to have style, but they've got to be aggressive on the mound. Find out what makes John Montefusco (San Francisco Giants) and Frank Tanana (California Angels) the unanimous favorites of our panel of specially selected judges.

Refuses to back move to enable withdrawal

S.D. chooses to remain with RTD

The San Dimas City Council has refused to support legislation enabling withdrawal from the Southern California Rapid Transit District, saying its city would be the "weak sister" in any agreement with San Bernardino County transit agencies.

The council vote was unanimous Monday to remain with RTD, but a motion by Councilman James Lough to support Assembly Bill 2694 was defeated 3-2 with Mayor Marvin Ersher and Councilmen Terry Dipple and Phil Wax opposed.

The legislation, authored by Assemblyman Bill McVittie, D-65th Dist., would allow state transit dollars from Senate Bill 325 to come directly to the City of Pomona. Under present law, SB 325 funds go directly to RTD and city governments never receive an allocation for transit money within the RTD service area.

Pomona was the only city included in the original legislation, but city officials there have approached the city councils in Claremont, La Verne and San Dimas for support by adding their names to the proposed legislation.

The issue is to be debated and heard before the Assembly Transportation Committee on April 28 and will go to the Assembly floor in early May.

It is an urgency measure which would require a two-thirds majority vote. The issue would be on the November ballot for voter approval if passed by both legislative bodies.

Claremont went on record Tuesday night in support of the legislation. Both cities are currently planning members of the West Valley Transit Service Authority in San Bernardino County.

If the enabling legislation for withdrawal from RTD successfully passes both houses and wins voter approval, Claremont and Pomona will probably join with WVTSA as full participants, receive local service from private operators and the Omnitrans buses in San Bernardino County and contract with RTD for regional service.

Lough, who has been involved with transit discussions for nearly two years, said he was opposed to withdrawal from RTD at the present time because of the implementation this week of the major improvement plan.

"Tampering with the transportation situation may create problems for those depending upon public bus transportation," Lough said. "However, we should support AB 2694 on the basis of it providing the machinery by which any city could withdraw from RTD if disappointed with service levels and the desire to start its own system.

"There are too many unanswered questions with San Bernardino. We would not immediately get the service that we now have with RTD."

Wax opposed any consideration of withdrawal or support of the legislation. The funding situation is too shaky and San Dimas has no track record of mileage figures for start-up of another transit system, he said.

Ersher said "San Dimas would be a weak sister with the San Bernardino and (Alan M.) Voorhees plan (for transit). The federal Urban Mass Transit Authority funding goes through only 1981 and it's uncertain after that. The federal government giveth and the federal government taketh away."

He and Wax wanted to "go all the way" with RTD as a show of good faith and not support legislation for withdrawal.

Lough contended that he did not trust every "big brother — RTD, the county, the state, the federal government. You don't give them all your trust without some kind of assurance. If you want to lay all your faith in RTD, fine, you go ahead. But RTD can withdraw all of the lines tomorrow that they put in yesterday. And there's nothing you can do about it."

Dipple, in switching his position from his original support of the bill, said he "wouldn't be in favor of adding our name to the bill since the other two cities haven't."

La Verne City Council will consider the matter at its meeting Monday. The RTD improvements there are minimal with only two lines providing marginal service along Bonita Avenue and Foothill Boulevard. The council there has never taken a firm stand either way on the issue of withdrawal.

Farmers gross $152 million

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Farm crop and livestock production in Los Angeles County grossed more than $152 million last year, county officials say.

Nurseries had gross receipts of more than $62 million in sales of flowers and other stock, officials reported. Vegetable crop production was $20.8 million, a $5.8 million jump from 1974.

Livestock returns were reported down, a result of dairies leaving the county.

Damien seeks consolation title

Edgewood, La Puente play for Elks crown

By JIM McCONNELL
PB Staff Writer

Damien High will be gunning for its third straight consolation title tonight as the stage is set for the finals of the 41st Annual Pomona Elks High School Baseball Tournament.

The Spartans are the lone remaining local school in the competition. They will meet Royal Oak at 5 p.m. at Ralph Welch Park for the tourney's consolation crown.

Powerful Edgewood and surprising La Puente will go at it for the tourney title tonight at Ralph Welch at 7:30 p.m. It marks the fourth straight year that Edgewood has made it to the tourney championship finals.

Covina played Fontana today at 2:30 p.m. for the third place championship. The J.V. competition was canceled after the diamonds on which Wednesday's J.V. games were to be held were unplayable due to the recent rainstorm.

Coach Matt Kolodge's Spartans gained today's consolation finals by besting Cypress 3-0 in Wednesday morning action and returning Wednesday night to down fellow San Antonio League member Garey 9-2.

Progress Bulletin
Sports
Pomona, California ■ Thursday, April 15, 1976

Royal Oak beat Anaheim 6-5 in nine innings and bested Alta Loma 8-3 Wednesday to set up the matchup with Damien.

Edgewood was simply awesome in marching to the championship finals. Coach Gary Kretz' Trojans eliminated Pomona 10-0 in Wednesday's quarterfinals and routed Fontana 14-0 in the semis. La Puente beat Walnut 7-0 and Covina 4-1 to make it into tonight's final game.

Damien is expected to start ace righthander Todd Bell against Royal Oak. Bell pitched a complete-game seven-hitter Tuesday in the Spartans' 8-4 win over Chino.

Royal Oak's probable starter tonight is Mike Sinner.

Edgewood is expected to start senior Keith Freeburg against La Puente. Rusty Shirley is the likely mound choice for the Warriors.

The Spartans used complete-game wins by Mark Schlesinger and Richard Bustos to post their wins Wednesday.

Schlesinger, in his first start of the year, blanked Cypress on five hits in Damien's 3-0 win. The Spartan senior struck out seven.

Damien took a quick 2-0 lead in that game in the last of the first with two unearned runs, and Ruben Lopez doubled home Robert Alexander with a big insurance tally in the fifth.

In Wednesday's second game, Richard Bustos limited Garey to only five hits in a 9-2 win. Bustos struck out four Vikings and walked none.

The Spartans put Garey away early, as they exploded for seven runs in the last of the first. Damien sent 12 men to the plate in that frame, and seven of them came home as the Spartans put together five hits, four walks and one hit batter for the scores.

Lopez led the 10-hit Damien attack with four safeties. He also had two RBI and scored two runs. Schlesinger continued his fine tourney play with two hits and three RBI.

Garey had rallied to beat Monrovia 8-4 earlier in the day, but the Vikings ran out of pitching in the Damien contest. David Randero hurled the win over Monrovia, allowing only four hits and fanning nine, but he started against Damien in the nightcap and was quickly knocked out of the box.

Chris Davis had a big day for Garey, as he accounted for three hits and scored three times. Larry Reyes had a two-run triple for the Vikes in the win over Monrovia.

Edgewood hammered out 24 runs on 22 hits in its two wins Wednesday. The Trojans dispatched tourney host Pomona behind Mike Pill's four-hit pitching and Sam Favata's hot bat. Favata slugged a two-run homer in the 10-0 win and scored three times.

Pomona loaded the sacks against Pill in the top of the first but the Edgewood hurler bore down to retire the next two Devil batters via the strikeout route and the Devils never threatened thereafter.

In their second game Wednesday, the Trojans knocked out 13 hits and took advantage of an incredible 13 errors by Fontana to post an easy 13-0 victory. Paul O'Brien, starting his first tilt of the season for Edgewood, subdued the Steelers on four hits.

Favata continued to rip the ball in the nightcap, as he had two hits and three more runs scored. Jeff Jones had three safeties for the Trojans, while Jerry Mendoza bombed a two-run homer in the third as nothing went right for Fontana.

The Steelers, who had bested Los Altos 2-1 in their morning game, set what must be a tourney record with their 13 miscues, seven of which came in the Trojan seven-run third inning.

La Puente, like Edgewood a member of the super-tough Sierra League, made it to the finals by besting Walnut and Covina.

La Puente's Shirley shut out Walnut in the Warriors' first game, as the Mustangs could muster only six hits. Bobby Cordova had two of those.

Shirley added a two-run homer to his days' work, and those two runs were enough for the win, although he drove in another run later in the contest with a sacrifice fly.

The Warriors rallied for three runs in the last of the sixth of Wednesday's nightcap to down Covina 4-1. Shirley socked his second homer of the day in that contest, a solo shot in the second, and added an RBI single in the sixth-inning uprising.

Royal Oak made it to the consolation final by edging Anaheim in nine innings Wednesday morning, and coming back Wednesday afternoon to down Hacienda League foe Alta Loma 8-3. The Braves committed seven errors in that contest, the final miscues leading to a five-run R.O. sixth inning which broke a 3-3 tie.

Earlier Wednesday, the Braves had bested Bonita 6-5 on Gary Ornelas RBI single in the seventh inning. Bill Bumstead led off the bottom of that frame for Bonita with a booming triple to left, but he tried to make it all the way home on the play and Brave leftfielder John Carlson threw him out at the plate.

Steve Cuccia, who hurled three innings of scoreless relief ball, picked up the win for Alta Loma. Scott Johnson led the Bonita attack with two hits and two runs scored.

Dodgers remain winless (0-4)

By DON BRADLEY
PB Staff Writer

LOS ANGELES — So far the 1976 baseball season has been "Operation Fall Short" for the Dodgers.

The Angelenos did it again Wednesday night at Dodger Stadium. Fall short that is. Five hits and two runs to be exact in a 3-1 loss to the San Diego Padres.

So now the proud Dodgers are the only winless team in the major leagues! Who'd have thought it?

"We played well all spring," mused manager Walter Alston. "Had our best spring ever. But we haven't done anything right since. We've had at least one bad inning every game and we haven't hit with men on base."

And that's the way it has been. The team batting average is under .200 and the pitching staff's team earned run average is over six runs per game.

Wednesday night Randy Jones made it look easy. Jones (2-0) had the Angelenos hitting the ball on the ground all night.

"That guy's a pretty good pitcher," admitted Alston of the Padres' 20-game winner (20-12) last year. "I'll bet he didn't throw three balls all night higher than the belt. Most of them were knee-high."

The Dodger lineup, with eight right handed hitters facing the lefthanded Jones, threatened only once. That was in the sixth inning when they scored their only run.

Ted Sizemore opened with a hard single. Dusty Baker lined out to Willie Davis. Steve Garvey and Ron Cey followed with hits.

That made the score 2-1 and put Dodger runners on first and third with only one out. But Jones got Joe Ferguson to foul out to Willie McCovey and Steve Yeager to fly out to Dave Winfield.

"It was getting cold out there," said Jones, "and I strained my back slightly and was fighting myself. But I just decided to forget about it. I feel good now. I think I'm hitting my groove."

Davis made a nice running backhanded catch of a drive by Bill Buckner to end the fifth inning. That one stretch, starting at the end of the fifth and continuing through the sixth inning, was the only one in which the Dodgers hit the ball solidly.

"In the sixth inning, we hit four line shots and ended up with just one run," sighed Alston.

The Padres, losers of six of nine at Dodger Stadium last year, jumped on starter Don Sutton (0-2) for back-to-back home runs in the second inning.

Winfield and Hector Torres were the authors. Winfield's blast went into the leftfield pavilion on a line. Torres' carried down the leftfield line into the stands alongside the Dodger bullpen.

Sutton was tagged for five hits including the homers and a double (also by Torres) in the first four innings. He gave up a single in each of the next three stanzas before retiring for a pinch hitter.

"I didn't think Sutton's stuff was good early," commented Alston. The pitch to Winfield was right down the pike. But he (Sutton) got a little better as he went along and I think he's on the right track."

San Diego came back to score its last run off Mike Marshall in the eighth. Marshall, booed loudly as he entered the game, served up hits to Winfield, Fred Kendall and Ted Kubiak.

The Padres threatened in the ninth when Bill Russell made two errors after the first batter was retired easily. But a snappy Russell-to-Sizemore-to-Garvey double play ended it.

The Dodgers, 0-4, were to fly to Atlanta today where they open a three-game series with the Braves and Andy Messersmith Friday.

DODGER DATA — Another sellout crowd of 52,219 showed up for the final night of "Jacket Series.;; The kids also got a Dodger batting helmet Wednesday. Some of them will get the jackets later. The club ran out of jackets and gave "exchange cards" which can be turned in for a jacket as soon as another shipment arrives.

If Monday's game hadn't been rained out, the Dodgers would have drawn over 156,000 for three games. As it is they ended up with 104,922 for two games.

Sutton, with three strikeouts, moved into third place ahead of Dazzy Vance on the all-time Dodger strikeout list with 1,920.

Ferguson, although going hitless, made a great diving catch in right center field in the second inning to save Sutton more grief.

Tommy John, Doug Rau and Burt Hooton will pitch against Dick Ruthven, Carl Morton and Andy Messersmith in Atlanta. Sunday's duel between Hooton and Messersmith will be televised (channel 11 at 11:15 a.m.)

Dave Lopes was due to come off the supplemental disabled list today. However the speedy second baseman is not expected to play until Monday when the Dodgers open a four-game series in Houston.

"It's too early to think about lineup changes," said Alston. "We'll go along the way we are for awhile."

Malcolm Linton to join Aztecs

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Malcolm Linton, a 24-year-old soccer star from England, was acquired by the Los Angeles Aztecs Wednesday from the Tampa Bay Rowdies for an undisclosed amount of cash and a 1978 draft choice.

The Aztecs would not divulge the amount of money involved, but Coach Terry Fisher said: "He is one of the most rugged players in the North American Soccer League and we acquired him to stabilize our defense."

Last year Linton started every game for the Rowdies, who won the league championship.

Ed Herrmann sparks Angels

KANSAS CITY (AP) — What a difference a victory makes.

Woebegone and silent after going 0-4 for 1976, the California Angels were happy to the point of silly Wednesday night after vaulting to 1-4.

Catcher Ed Herrmann, who swatted two home runs and drove in four runs and generally accounted for the 7-6 victory over the Kansas City Royals, was asked what were the pitches he blasted over the fence.

"The first one was low and in...No, it was up and away....No, I guess it was..."

"He doesn't know," interrupted a teammate. "He closes his eyes on every pitch."

"Yeah, that's right," Herrmann said. "I closed my eyes and swung."

"Hey, we got another hour of drinking time," urged another teammate, "Cut the talk and let's go."

Herrmann disappeared out the door, both eyes wide open.

In the Royals' clubhouse manager Whitey Herzog reflected on the game and Herrmann's name bounced off the walls.

"The big play was Herrmann's throw to the pitcher to get White at the plate," recalled the Kansas City skipper. He referred to a sixth inning situation in which the Royals, with runners at second and third, came up empty handed.

Reacting on what Herzog termed an "instinct play" White bolted toward home when Herrmann bobbled a Frank Tanana fastball. Tanana alertly covered the plate as Herrmann scrambled for the errant pitch and was in position to take the ball and tag out the runner as Herrmann made an off-balance, desperation toss.

The Royals led, 5-3, heading into the eighth inning, when young reliever Bob McClure issued walks to Dave Collins and Bruce Bochte. Bill Melton's single brought home Collins and set up Herrmann's blast off Marty Pattin over the right field fence.

The Royals scratched out one more run in the eighth when Fred Patek scored on Amos Otis' single.

Herrmann's bases-empty homer off starter Dennis Leonard in the third inning had trimmed the Royals lead to 3-1.

The winner in relief was Sid Monge. Pattin was the loser.

Male fans sue Kings, Lakers

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Three male sports fans, saying they are fed up with paying twice the price charged women, have sued the Los Angeles Kings of the National Hockey League and the Los Angeles Lakers of the National Basketball Association to get their money back.

Richard T. Ferko, Robert Carlson and Walter Wabby filed suit in Superior Court Wednesday on behalf of all men over 14 years old who had bought tickets to either the Lakers' or Kings' games after January, 1975. They said they were refused admission for the half-price tickets offered women and claimed they were victims of sex discrimination.

Kings gain confidence

By The Associated Press

The Los Angeles Kings, no longer mesmerized by the Boston Bruins, now are hoping to come up with some more magical mystery power in the National Hockey League's Stanley Cup playoffs.

The Kings, the only team to gain a victory on foreign ice in the first two games of each of the league's four quarter-final series, return home tonight with renewed confidence.

"Until we beat them, we were in awe of the Bruins," said the Kings' Bob Berry. "The key thing is that we broke the psychological barrier."

Surprisingly carrying the magical wand for the Kings is goalie Gary Edwards, who suddenly has replaced Rogatien Vachon, normally Los Angeles' No. 1 netminder.

Edwards played Tuesday night when the Kings outlasted the Bruins 3-2 in overtime at Boston. It was the first home loss for the Bruins since Dec. 23 when Edwards and the Kings also spelled defeat for them.

And it is expected to be Edwards in goal again tonight when the underdog Kings face the Bruins at Los Angeles in Game Three of their series, tied 1-1.

The three other series also resume tonight, with Toronto at Philadelphia, Buffalo at the New York Islanders and Montreal at Chicago. Philadelphia, Buffalo and Montreal all lead 2-0.

Los Angeles Coach Bob Pulford usually goes with a winning goalie and therefore figures to use Edwards ahead of Vachon tonight.

"We'll have to see what happens, but right now I'm very pleased," said the cautious Edwards, who stopped 30 Boston shots in the Kings' victory.

"Boston is a great hockey team," said Pulford, "and for us to come out of there with a win makes me very happy, especially after that first game." The Bruins won the opener 4-0.

While Vachon has lost—at least temporarily—his starting job, Philadelphia's Bernie Parent has regained his.

Parent, limited to only 11 regular-season games because of a spinal operation, has led the defending Stanley Cup champions to 4-1 and 3-1 victories over Toronto. "For the first time since I came back I'm happy with myself," Parent said after Game Two in which he made 32 saves, some of them spectacular.

Adding to Toronto's woes is the fact the Maple Leafs haven't beaten Philadelphia since 1973.

The Islanders are at a similar disadvantage against Buffalo. They haven't beaten the Sabres at Uniondale, N.Y., in four seasons. The Sabres have another interesting streak going. They have won their last six overtime games, including a 3-2 decision over the Islanders Tuesday night.

Nevertheless, Islanders Coach Al Arbour isn't dismayed. "We'll bounce back," he said.

Montreal Coach Scotty Bowman also thinks Chicago can bounce back against his Canadiens. "I think everybody is putting them down, but they can play good, sound defensive hockey," pointed out Bowman.

Bowman's comments notwithstanding, the Canadiens won the first two games handily—4-0 and 3-1.

Doubts nag Evert after all-out victory

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Chris Evert is working harder to maintain her dominance of women's tennis, but the doubts continue to nag her — is she still the world's No. 1 woman player?

Miss Evert had to fight back from a 5-3 deficit in the first set of her one hour, 32 minute match against Rosemary Casals in the first of three round robin matches for the $150,000 Women's Tennis Association championship at the Los Angeles Sports Arena Wednesday night. Miss Evert won, 7-5, 6-4, but she scared herself in the process.

Down 5-3 in the first set, Miss Evert said, "I realized then I had to go for broke." She won the next three games and averted a possible upset.

Miss Evert and Miss Casals are 16-1 in lifetime matches against each other. The only time Miss Evert ever lost to the diminutive Rosie was in Chicago in 1974, when Miss Casals took an upset 6-2, 6-3, decision.

Miss Evert came into the Virginia Slims-sponsored championship tournament only second-seeded, despite her world ranking, and with the realization that she is not invincible.

Two weeks ago in Philadelphia she lost in the finals of a Virginia Slims tournament to Evonne Goolagong, and the week before that in Boston, she was a shocking first round loser to Dianne Fromholtz.

"I worked very hard last week," Miss Evert said. "Even though I have not been playing well lately I am satisified with my progress. I'm just playing them one match at a time."

Miss Casals confirmed that while Miss Evert has played better, she is still very tough to beat.

"You have to beat her at her own game," Miss Casals said. "You have to hit the kind of shots she hits, only better."

Miss Casals said she ran out of steam after building up the 5-3 lead in the first set.

"I got tired," she said. "That's one of the things Chris does to you. After awhile that's how she gets to you."

Top seeded Miss Goolagong had an even rougher time with her first round robin opponent, Marita Redondo.

The former preliminary player, who only earned a starting position in the 32-player draw at midseason, took Miss Goolagong three sets before Miss Goolagong won, 6-4, 5-7, 6-4.

Miss Goolagong continued to have trouble serving, and her spectacular backhand missed the corners more than it ordinarily does, as Miss Redondo put away volleys and forehand ground strokes againt her consistently.

If Miss Goolagong and Miss Evert meet in the tournament it would have to be in the finals on Saturday. The unusual format calls for each to face three other players in her group and for the best player at the end of the round robin to meet in the finals.

If neither Miss Evert nor Miss Goolagong is upset, they will be the finalists. The tournament winner will collect the largest purse in women's tennis, $40,000, and the runner-up will take home $25,000.

To reach the finals Miss Everet will have to defeat Sue Barker tonight and Virginia Wade Friday. Miss Goolagong will have to beat Francoise Durr tonight and Martina Navratilova Friday.

In the final match early Thursday, Sue Barker defeated Virginia Wade 7-5, 7-6. The tie breaker score was 5-4 in the second set. Miss Wade is ranked No. 1 and Miss Barker No. 2 in their native England.

Floyd is trying to get together

CARLSBAD, Calif. (AP) — Ray Floyd is still trying to pull himself together in the aftermath of his runaway Masters victory.

"I didn't know you could get so tired," Floyd said before setting out today in the first round of the $230,000 Tournament of Champions.

"It was a mental, rather than physical thing. For the first couple of days I was just beat. I don't think I've ever been so exhausted in my life.

"It was an emotionally-draining experience.

"But that's behind me now. There's no reason I can't win again. After all, everybody else seems to be winning them in bunches."

And that's definitely been the trend on the pro golf tour over the last 12 months. Of the 40 events that send their champions to this elite, winners-only event, 27 have been won by 10 players. That domination by a relative handful of players, plus the absence of Jack Nicklaus, produced a tiny field of only 22 men—the smallest in many years.

Not only have there been an unusual number of multiplewinners over the past 12 months, the players who have been gaining them have reeled them off in streaks.

Roger Maltbie won two in a row as the 1975 Rookie of the Year. Johnny Miller collected two titles in his first four starts this year. Ben Crenshaw scored consecutive victories. Hale Irwin won two out of three.

And Hubert Green romped to three in a row—only the second time in 14 years any player had achieved that feat—in the weeks just before the Masters.

ABC-TV will provide national television coverage of the last two rounds Saturday and Sunday.

Big Macs clash at Philly

By The Associated Press

Philadelphia fans can't help but be relishing tonight's playoff matchup of the National Basketball Association's two "Big Macs"—Bob McAdoo of the Buffalo Braves and George McGinnis of the hometown 76ers.

McAdoo, the Braves' agile center, became only the fourth player in league history to win the scoring title at least three consecutive years, finishing the season with a 31.1 average per game. He also was seventh in rebounding and sixth in blocked shots.

McGinnis, the 76ers' powerful forward, wound up his first NBA season—following a standout career in the American Basketball Association—as the league's sixth best scorer (23.0), sixth leading rebounder and second in steals.

The Buffalo-Philadelphia game, the first in their best-of-three qualifying series, is one of four NBA playoff contests scheduled tonight. In the other qualifying series, the Milwaukee Bucks, with a 1-0 lead, meet the Pistons at Detroit.

In best-of-seven quarterfinal series, the Washington Bullets, with a 1-0 edge, entertain the Cleveland Cavaliers, and the Seattle SuperSonics, also with a 1-0 advantage, are at home against the Phoenix Suns.

Philadelphia Coach Gene Shue has made no secret of his strategy against Buffalo. He has indicated he virtually is willing to concede McAdoo his average number of points, explaining: "What we have to do is hold down the rest of the Braves."

The 76ers' tactics worked well enough during the regular season for them to beat the Braves in four of seven games, enabling them to gain the home court advantage in the playoffs.

Both teams have explosive offenses and porous defenses. Buffalo was the second highest scoring team during the season with a 107.3 average and Philadelphia was fourth at 106.5. Defensively, Philadelphia finished 14th in the league, allowing 106.3 points per game, and Buffalo was 15th at 106.4.

Milwaukee, beset by rumors revolving around the uncertain status of Coach Larry Costello and General Manager Wayne Embry, nevertheless overcame Detroit 110-107 in their opening game, mainly on the play of guard Gary Brokaw. Filling in for injured Jim Price, Brokaw, who had averaged only 8.3 points during the regular season, broke loose for a career-high 36 points and added five assists, three rebounds, one steal and a blocked shot.

"Brokaw was just unbelievable," said Detroit guard Chris Ford.

Washington, which nullifed Cleveland's home court advantage by winning its series opener 100-95 against the Cavaliers at the Coliseum in Richfield Township, Ohio, has not become overconfident.

"They may have had the jitters because this was their first time in the playoffs," said center Wes Unseld of the playoff-hardened Bullets. "But they will be tougher from here on in."

Seattle will be riding a 17-game home court winning streak and the hot shooting of "sixth man" Fred Brown against Phoenix. Brown scored 34 points in the Sonics' 102-99 victory in the opener, prompting Phoenix Coach John MacLeod to understate: "We'll just have to do a better job on him."

Pressure remains on Spurs

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — "The pressure is still on us," said Coach Bob Bass despite a 111-103 triumph which earned his San Antonio Spurs a 2-1 edge over the New York Nets in their American Basketball Association semifinal playoffs.

"We have to win the next game at home on Sunday," Bass said after Larry Kenon poured in 28 points to pace the Spurs in Wednesday night's third game of the best-of-seven series. "If we can win at home we don't have to win any more games at New York."

San Antonio overcame a 53-48 halftime deficit as Kenon managed 24 of his points in the second half, while teammate Mike Gale hit a career high of 22. The Spurs ran off the first six points after intermission and outscored the Nets 63-50 in the second half.

New York Coach Kevin Loughery said, "The key to the game was the beginning of the third quarter, when it took us six shots to get a basket. That let San Antonio come back on us."

Despite Kenon's hot hand, the top scorer was Julius Erving with 31 points for the Nets. Brian Taylor contributed 20 for the New Yorkers.

Kenon grabbed 16 rebounds and Billy Paultz 14 as the Spurs controlled the boards by a 57-45 margin.

"They stopped our inside game in the first half," Bass summed up,

WHA takes action to trim violence

WINNIPEG (AP) — The World Hockey Association, with an injured superstar out for the season and one of its players facing criminal charges, has come down hard on its Quebec and Calgary teams in an attempt to end violence on the ice.

On Wednesday, the league slapped $25,000 fines against the Calgary Cowboys and Quebec Nordiques for failure to control their personnel in a bench-clearing brawl last Sunday night at Quebec City during the second game of the Canadian Division semifinal.

Chief executive officer Ben Hatskin also announced player fines and a string of suspensions that included both coaches.

The axe fell harder on the Cowboys, whose coach, Joe Crozier, was barred for the rest of the Quebec-Calgary series and indefinitely thereafter subject to reinstatement by the league's Board of Governors.

Quebec Coach Jean-Guy Gendron was suspended for the third game of the series Wednesday night in Calgary, won by the Cowboys 3-2. Calgary now leads 3-0 in the best-of-seven quarter-final series. Winnipeg also gained a 3-0 advantage over Edmonton in their quarter-final series, edging the Oilers 3-2 on Bobby Hull's goal midway through the third period.

The decision was announced after more than six hours of meetings here in the aftermath of Sunday night's free-for-all which left Quebec scoring ace Marc Tardif with a concussion and out of action for the rest of the season.

Rick Jodzie of Calgary, charged with causing bodily injury with intent to maim in connection with Tardif's injury, was suspended indefinetely and at least until the end of the current WHA season.

Bud Poile tendered his resignation as WHA vice-president in charge of hockey operations, subject to acceptance by the Board of Governors.

There was no indication when ultimate rulings might be made in the cases of Jodzio and Poile.

The stiff sanctions were the price demanded by the Nordiques for continuing the playoff series.

After the rulings were announced, Quebec team President John Dacres said he was "very happy" and took his players to Winnipeg International Airport for a flight to Calgary.

Hatskin said the fines were sufficient to deter violence in the WHA playoffs.

"God help anyone who gets in a brawl from here on in," he said.

"If any other players get involved in fights like that, it will mean the gate for good. We are not going to stand for that type of hockey in the World Hockey Association."

Said Dacres: "We had asked for three points and we got them all."

He said that the Quebec team was prepared to fly home from Winnipeg unless its demands were met.

The Calgary team, however, was far from satisfied with Hatskin's actions.

Cal Poly pounds SFS for 20 hits

Cal Poly pounded two San Francisco State pitchers for 20 hits Wednesday afternoon in an 11-5 victory at Pomona College. The Bronco diamond was still recovering from Tuesday's rain.

Ken Hellyer led the way for the Broncos with a pair of two-run homers and two singles in five tries. He drove in seven runs.

Poly's Clay Harris went four-for-four, Scott Pyle was three-for-three and Dennis Sherow went three for five.

San Francisco State scored two runs in the top of the first inning off winning pitcher Tom Rosenstein (5-3), but Poly wasted little time in jumping on starter and loser Rick Landucci (1-4).

Alex Torres opened the bottom of the first with his 14th double of the year and Sherow followed with another two-bagger. Torres, who was tagging, failed to score on Sherow's hit, but after Harris walked to load the bases, Hellyer and Jim Pryor hit back-to-back two-run singles. All that was with no outs.

Hellyer's blasts keyed a two-run fifth inning and a four-run sixth. Poly's Greg Molina pitched impressively in relief of Rosenstin. Molina threw three innings, giving up no hits and one walk.

The Broncos, 20-20-1, were scheduled to return to CCAA play today in a 2:30 p.m. game at Cal State Northridge, with Poly's Bruce MacPherson and Northridge's Curt Jenkins the probable pitcher.

Poly will host Northridge Saturday in a noon doubleheader.

MSAC tops L.A. Harbor

Bob Veselic pitched Mt. San Antonio College to a 5-0 win over L.A. Harbor Wednesday in the MSAC Easter Tournament.

Veselic struck out six batters and walked four en route to his seventh win against four losses.

The Mounties touched Harbor starter Bill Tipton for the winning run in the bottom of the first inning when, with two outs, Ron Roenicke drew a walk, stole second base, went to third on a wild pitch and scored on Tracy Cowger's single.

MSAC added two runs in the second on two hits, an error and two walks — one of them issued to Roenicke with the bases loaded.

Roenicke drove in two more runs with a triple in the seventh to finish the game one-for-two with three runs batted in. Cowger was two-for-four with an RBI and Val Primante went two-for-three.

The Mounties were scheduled to host East Los Angeles today at 1 p.m.

Kicking around with Adrian Mercado and Willy Keo

THE L.A. AZTECS AND THE NEW YORK COSMOS met last Sunday for the second time in as many weeks. They met first in Sun Devil Stadium, Arizona and the game ended in a 0-0 bore. The return match was played at the Coliseum and ended as a 1-0 semi-bore.

Pre-season games are not necessarily Hitchcock thrillers, but this one was billed as "world's two greatest soccer stars clash." They didn't (because they were not supposed to anyway). What they were supposed to do, was to determine how ready they were for the coming season, and judging from their past two performances neither team looked like a shoo-in for the crown.

The Cosmos played the first half aggressively but, almost without exception, dribbled the ball once too often and lost it all too often. Pele played well, working incessantly offensively as well as defensively. Shadowed, or better yet flypapered, every step of the way by the Aztec's Jose Lopez, Pele chose to play wide thus taking the defender with him; when receiving the ball he chose to pass off effectively yet managed to get off three shots on goal . . . and scored the lone goal.

The Aztecs played well the first half, but were unable to finish play patterns. George Best showed masterful dribbling and passing skills. His other forwards, unable to anticipate Best did not cut into the open areas to receive the ball; only midfielder Luis Marotte cut in twice and twice Best laid the sphere on him. Marotte's shots were off target, but were the most dangerous threats on the New York goal.

The second half began with New York picking up the pace with quick passes and forced many Aztec turnovers. Pele, who prefers to play within a strict framework of team play, put on a twenty-minute display of individual soccer skills. Retaining the ball when he received it, he turned to face his shadow, Lopez, and outmaneuvered him at will. At the 50th minute of play, Pele took a low and hard driving corner kick from Dave Clements; the ball slid past several defenders to a waiting Pele who shot the ball to the right of goalie Graham Horn. The 29,232 fans got what they came to see . . . a goal from O Rei Pele.

Meanwhile, back on the other side of the field, George Best waited for passes that seldom arrived, and the Aztecs waited for goals that never materialized. Although Best was allowed to roam freely throughout the entire game, he only managed to get off two shots on goal, both in the first half, while Pele who was dogged by Jose Lopez ended with seven shots and a goal.

Ron Davies, newly acquired striker for the Aztecs, appeared to run out of steam in the second half while new arrival Alan Kelley looked more impressive in the defense. Luis Marotte, Bernie Fagan, and Miguel Lopez, as well as Ramon Moraldo performed well for the "Tangerines".

THE NASL, L.A. AZTECS, AND THE SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA Chevrolet Dealers are sponsoring a soccer contest called "Beat the Goalie" for youth ages 7 through 17. Registration forms are available at local Chevrolet dealers.

THE CHAFFEY PANTHERS BOWED TO El Camino College 3-1 for their first loss of the season. Tom Rodgers spoiled the shutout with the Panther's only score. Next Saturday, Chaffey meets L. A. Pierce College at 11:00 a.m. at home. After Saturday's game, the Panthers play their remaining two games away against MSAC and Long Beach City College. Their last game will be a YMCA fund raiser at Diamond Bar against Pierce College on May 16th.

THE PRO SOCCER CIRCUITS go into action shortly with the Aztecs traveling north to open their NASL season vs the San Jose Earthquakes Saturday night while over in Van Nuys the brand new Los Angeles Skyhawks will display its talents against the Sacramento Spirits in the opening American League contest on the west coast.

THE SKYHAWKS AND THE AZTECS drew the No. 1 college draft choice, Steve Ralbovsky of Brown University, but the Yugoslav-born star termed the Skyhawks offer more attractive and will lend his skills to the American League entry along with former Liverpool captain Ron Yeats who will bring a full spool of experience to the Skyhawk defense. Midfielder Micky Cave and dynamic scoring star Jimmy Rolland come with strong British credentials designed to make it tough for Sacramento and the rest of the ASL.

THE SPIRITS HAVE ADDED TWO ENGLISH PLAYERS . . . David Attley and David Lyon, and also Miguel Suarez, formerly of Uruguay's selection.

THE SKYHAWK/SPIRIT CLASH gets under way at Birmingham High School field (Victory at Balboa) in Van Nuys . . . straight out Ventura Freeway to Balboa and turn north. Kickoff set for 7:30 p.m.

THE AZTECS HOME OPENER is set for April 25 when the Rochester Lancers, 1970 NASL champs, come to El Camino Stadium (off Redondo Blvd in Torrance). The Lancers open their season on April 23 in San Diego vs the Jaws of NASL.

CLOSER TO HOME . . . IN CLAREMONT . . . we'll play host to the visiting German Youth team in an April 21 game at Sumner Park at 3:30 p.m. when Otto Rieger will assemble a group of Claremont youth to meet the Germans. This is part of the cultural exchange program which has been in action for a few years now . . . hosting the German visitors and then visiting Germany with the American team. Last year the Pomona Valley team tied a strong German club to show that the American boys know their way around a soccer field. With good coaching — why not?

* * *

AT 3 P.M. SATURDAY the tape of the Aztec/Cosmos game of last Sunday will be shown over Channel 34, KMEX with coverage of Pele and George Best. KMEX Chief Worrier Danny Villanueva confided in a Phoenix conversation last week that No. 34 has contracted to carry the South American championship league and cup games and we hope to be able to tell you the specific hour and the teams involved very soon. Stay with us.

WITH THE U.S. OPEN CUP champ Maccabees knocked out of the running after their recent loss to San Francisco the soccer pendulum is switching to the pro leagues who are looking forward to better crowds and better players as each season progresses. We are being favored with the chance to see such renowed stars as Pele and George Best, Geoff Hurst and Bobby Moore, Charley Cooke and Ron Yeats, Rodney Marsh and Ron Davies, Dave Clements and Ramon Mifflin plus some of the best college graduating talent available.

THE NASL TEAMS must carry 6 American citizens on their roster and the ASL is heralding an "Americanization" program blended with a mixture of foreign talent. Some of the American college players feel they are not getting a fair shake from the NASL coaches and are matriculating to the ASL where they feel they have a better chance to get in some playing time.

THE ST. LOUIS STARS . . . with an English coach . . . took the measure of the Chicago Sting a few weeks ago . . . with a full St. Louis lineup of players from St. Louis colleges. And last year the Stars won the Central Division title with 8 St. Louisans in the starting lineup, plus three British stars. Americanization in soccer is a slow process but it's on the way. It can't happen with the American boy relegated to the bench. It's hard to play well there.

THE RECENT CROWDS attending the Cosmo Caravan tour were: Dallas — 20,000; San Antonio — 14,000; Tempe — 15,000; San Diego — 18,000; Honolulu — 23,000; Seattle — 58,000; and L.A. — 30,000. Pelé is the big draw, for sure, but there is something heartening in the turnouts that looks good for soccer in the U.S. Best of fortune to the Skyhawks and the Aztecs of Southern California!

Cougars recruit top cager

PULLMAN, Wash. (AP)— Stuart House, a 6-foot-10 high school standout from Detroit, has signed a national basketball letter of intent to play for Washington State University, school officials said Wednesday.

The 230-pound Denby High School senior has been named to every prep all-American team. He averaged 31 points, 19 rebounds and six blocked shots per game his senior year.

"Stuart's signing is the equal to any player I have signed in my 14 years of coaching," said WSU basketball Coach George Raveling.

"He is a good outside shooter, can handle the ball and has quickness," Raveling said. "We expect him to team with (Steve) Puidokas to make a vital contribution his freshman year at Washington State."

Puidokas, a 6-foot-11 ½ junior, plays post for the Cougars.

House is the son of former Harlem Globetrotter Charles House, who listed four reasons why his son chose Washington State.

"The most important is playing for Coach Raveling," House said.

"We also felt at WSU he wouldn't have to play center but would be used as a forward which is his natural position; George was the only head coach to personally recruit him and we were impressed with the petition we received from the WSU students, House said.

More than 3,000 students signed a petition encouraging House to attend the Pullman school.

House's best game last season included 48 points, 35 rebounds and 21 blocked shots.

Diamond Bar Kickers advance to regionals

The Diamond Bar Kickers of the Pacific Soccer League won the Southern California State Championship by defeating the South Bay Gunners from Torrance 3-0 in the final game of the State Cup Competition played last Saturday at Jackie Robinson Stadium.

Goals were scored by Brad Curtis, Paul Caligiuri and Jeff Ratajczak on a penalty kick.

The win by the Diamond Bar team was its 29th for the season and represented the pinnacle of success for Coach George Ratajczak who formed, outfitted, and coached the team from a dream to a reality in less than one year and then led them further than any other team in Diamond Bar history.

As the representative of the Southern California region, the Kickers now go on to play in Las Vegas against seven other regional winners representing the Western United States. The regional play-offs will be held on May 22 and 23.

The Diamond Bar aggregation goes into the playoffs with an impressive set of credentials including an undefeated record, a tally of 214 goals scored while holding opponents to a total of 16 for the season, and a mark of 40 goals in cup play against only 1 for opposing teams.

Throughout the season the hallmark of the Kickers team has been its depth and balance and Coach Ratajczak is confident that this attribute will serve them well in Las Vegas.

Virdon keeps bullpen busy

By Associated Press

If Sparky Anderson has earned the nickname "Captain Hook," Houston Astros Manager Bill Virdon deserves to be an admiral.

Anderson earned his stripes last year for rarely letting a Cincinnati Reds pitcher finish what he started. But that was nothing compared to Virdon, whose juggling act would make Barnum & Bailey proud.

Virdon pencilled in 17 pitchers last week when the Astros lost their first three games to Cincinnati. The results changed but the strategy remained the same the past three days, when the Astros evened their record by sweeping the three-game series with the San Francisco Giants.

Virdon used three pitchers in each of those victories, including Wednesday night's 5-3 decision over the GIANTS.

"I'm not going to hesitate in going to the bullpen," said Virdon, "because our starters have not had enough work yet. When I bring in a reliever I do so with the knowledge that he should have better stuff than the man who is coming out."

Elsewhere in the National League, the Philadelphia Phillies pounded the Montreal Expos 8-2, the Chicago Cubs edged the New York Mets 6-5 and the San Diego Padres trimmed the Los Angeles Dodgers 3-1.

Larry Dierker lasted six innings for the Astros, which is six more than his last outing when he was shelled by the Reds and left the game without retiring a batter.

He was backed by Roger Metzger's run-scoring double and Enos Cabell's RBI triple, key hits in the Astros' four-run second inning. He also had the support of two effective relief pitchers, Larry Hardy and Jose Sosa.

"I like the way Hardy and Sosa came in tonight and threw strikes," Virdon said. "After all, throwing strikes is the only way."

Dierker was around long enough to even his record at 1-1 and improve his career mark against the Giants to 20-8.

"When I feel good, I feel upset when I have to come out of the game," Dierker said. "Tonight, I didn't mind because I had less stuff than usual."

Phillies 8, Expos 2

Philadelphia's Jim Lonborg scattered six hits, struck out four and walked three to pick up his first victory since July 23, 1975.

"For me, it's the beginning of a new career," said Lonborg, Cy Young Award winner in 1967 with the Boston Red Sox, who suffered from shoulder problems last season.

"I can't say that I thought that I could finish the game when (Manager Danny) Ozark told me I was going to start today. At the moment, I'm going inning by inning.

"I had stretched ligamants in my right shoulder and I didn't have any velocity in my pitches. Now I think everything is going all right."

Cubs 6, Mets 5

The Cubs won their fourth straight game, which was marked by catcher Randy Hundley's return to the club. The Chicago crowd of 9,307 made Hundley feel welcome with several standing ovations and he showed his appreciation with a double that triggered a three-run seventh inning.

"That tore me up," said Hundley, who was picked up by the Cubs Tuesday after being released by San Diego.

Jose Cardenal's single, Bill Madlock's triple and Jerry Morales' single were the run-producing hits in the decisive seventh.

Mets ace Tom Seaver reinjured his calf and was forced to leave the game in the sixth with New York leading 5-2.

"I couldn't drive the ball and by the fifth inning I had nothing behind my pitches," Seaver said. "I don't know if I'll miss a turn. I'll have to wait a day or two."

West, Hawkins set to coach top preps

INGELWOOD — Jerry West and Tommy Hawkins have been selected to coach the California All-America team in the Farrell's Basketball Classic 11 at The Forum on May 2.

The former Laker teammates will guide California's finest graduating high school basketball stars against the powerful Soviet Union Junior Nationals.

This will be the first coaching experience in the classic series for West, while Hawkins helped coach the United States All-America team in last year's game at Long Beach.

"We feel very fortunate to have the services of Jerry West and Tommy Hawkins," said Executive Director Richard Marquis.

"I know all the kids playing will be as excited about the selections as we are. It will certainly be a learning experience for the kids and an honor for us."

Tickets for the Farrell's Basketball Classic 11 may be purchased at The Forum, Ticketron, and all Mutual Ticket Agencies.

San Jose drag racer dies in practice run

FREMONT, Calif. (AP) — A 30-year-old San Jose, Calif. race driver died Sunday as his wife and children watched when his dragster crashed in a high-speed practice run at Fremont Raceway, a race official said.

James Raymond Lewis, a plumber and race driver, was pronounced dead on arrival at Washington Hospital in Fremont, with massive injuries, an Alameda County deputy coroner said.

Robert Hugill, general manager of the raceway, said Lewis just had completed a quarter-mile practice run, clocked at 138 miles per hour, when his dragster veered off of the pavement and flipped end-over-end, throwing him from the vehicle.

His wife, Dinah, and two young children were watching from the stands, Hugill said.

There was no immediate word on the cause of the crash.

American League roundup

Decker can smile again

By Associated Press

When you only win a game every April or so and you've suffered through the kind of 12 months Joe Decker has, it's tough to feel sorry for your opposing pitcher just because his infield commits five errors and costs him the ballgame.

"It didn't bother me. It's just nice to get a win," Decker said Wednesday after hurling 7 1-3 impressive innings—two runs, five hits, three walks, four strikeouts—in the Minnesota Twins' 6-2 victory over Wilbur Wood and the Chicago White Sox.

Wood yielded eight hits but all the Minnesota runs were unearned. Second baseman Jack Brohamer and shortstop Bucky Dent committed two errors apiece while third baseman Jorge Orta had one.

Meanwhile, Decker blanked the Sox until the eighth when he needed relief help from Bill Campbell. It was the 28-year-old right-hander's first triumph since April 9, 1975. Two weeks later he was felled by a virus that virtually wiped out his season.

Elsewhere in the American League, the Texas Rangers completed a three-game sweep of the Oakland A's 4-2, the Cleveland Indians came from four runs behind to edge the Boston Red Sox 6-5 and the California Angels posted their first 1976 triumph by shading the Kansas City Royals 7-6.

The numbers in Decker's lost 1975 campaign were all losers— 10 appearances, a 1-3 record, 8.65 earned run average, 25 runs in 26 innings with a whopping 36 walks and only eight strikeouts.

Coming over from the National League, Manager Gene Mauch really wasn't sure about Decker, even though he pitched parts of four seasons with the Chicago Cubs.

"When I took the job here, I didn't know if Decker was a good pitcher or a bad pitcher, but I like what I've seen," Mauch said. "He's a powerful pitcher and he's very hard to read. Just when you think he's tiring, he comes up with some hellacious stuff."

Rangers 4, A's 2

Gaylord Perry pitched Texas to its third straight triumph over the A's with a six-hitter, outdueling Vida Blue. By winning, the Rangers moved into first place in the AL West with a 5-1 record, 1½ games ahead of the White Sox and two in front of the perennial champion A's.

"This team is going to be for real all season," said Manager Frank Lucchesi. "This is a young team that's going to get better every day. I think our team has the self-confidence it needs to win. You can see it in the dugout."

Texas took a 2-1 lead in the fifth inning. Roy Howell singled, was sacrificed to second and scored when Jim Fregosi's hot grounder took a bad hop and caromed off third baseman Sal Bando's arm for a double. Toby Harrah's single sent Fregosi home. In the seventh, Lenny Randle walked, moved to second on a sacrifice, took third on a grounder and scored on a wild pitch.

Indians 6, Red Sox 5

Rick Manning doubled to trigger a six-run sixth inning against Ferguson Jenkins that erased a 4-0 Boston lead as the Red Sox pounded Jim Bibby. Manning scored on Duane Kuiper's single and one out later a walk and Boog Powell's single made it 4-2.

Rico Carty doubled a run home and, after an intentional walk, Jenkins balked the tying run across. Alan Ashby then delivered a two-run single.

"I just couldn't stop 'em," Jenkins said. "I felt good and I still was throwing with good velocity, but I couldn't get them out.

"The balk was an unforgiveable mistake. I can't remember the last time I balked. There was no sense in arguing. You can't call the play back. The umpire said I had started my motion. I didn't want the sign from the catcher. Instead of just shaking it off, I stepped off the rubber. Unforgiveable."

Flyers goalie regains touch

TORONTO (AP) — Bernie Parent, sidelined for most of the National Hockey League season because of spinal surgery, appears to have recovered his goaltending touch for the Philadelphia Flyers.

Parent has backstopped the Flyers to two straight victories over Toronto in the quarter-finals of the Stanley Cup playoffs. He's likely to be back in the nets again Thursday when the Flyers and Maple Leafs play the third game in their best-of-seven series.

Parent played only 11 regular season games and he was not altogether confident that he had shaken off the rust of his season-long inactivity.

On Monday night in the series opener with Toronto, he was rarely tested as the Flyers maintained their mastery over the Leafs with an easy 4-1 victory.

But on Tuesday night it was a different story in the Flyers' 3-1 victory. The Leafs outshot the Flyers 32-27 and they forced Parent to make some spectacular saves.

"For the first time since I came back I'm happy with myself," said Parent, 31. "I think I'm just a little, little bit away from being 100 per cent. But before tonight I wasn't sure.

'HUSKY' TUTOR — Jackie Dralle works as a tutor for the University of Washington Basketball team. She says she tries to get players to be realistic with themselves.

Two rules govern tutor

SEATTLE (AP) — Two firm rules govern Jackie Dralle's work as tutor to the University of Washington basketball team: never do assignments for the players and never get romantically involved.

It's not that she's not interested in her students. Last season's worry about a young man who could shoot baskets but couldn't write earned her an ulcer.

The 20-year-old sophomore is employed to keep Husky hoop stars eligible for their athletic scholarships on upper-campus roll sheets.

As she helps the one-third to one-half of the team that needs special tutoring in one or more subjects to maintain playing eligibility, she also hears the gripes and big-time dreams that make up a basketball player's life.

"I get a lot of 3 a.m. phone calls with personal problems," she says. "I also hear all the day-to-day gripes like 'I think I'm getting the shaft,' or 'They're not taping my ankles right.' I give great advice but I can listen too. And I do."

As part of her job, Miss Dralle convinces those professors "who hate jocks" to give basketball stars a chance while she's teaching them basic academic skills.

She's stayed up half the night helping players memorize test material and because of her no-loss record in helping the players, she's now considering a career in education instead of the law.

"It takes a while to learn to communicate with athletes," she says. "They have a lot of growing up to do. Most of them are introverts. They know a lot of people but they're all athletically involved people."

Miss Dralle first got acquainted with basketball players as team statistician at Mercer Island High School. The school's former coach now is on the university staff and contacted her for player tutoring when she arrived on campus.

She doesn't do work assignments because she feels players don't learn anything that way. And she avoids romantic attachments to preserve her credibility as a tutor. She says she also makes an effort to be introduced to players' girl friends to eliminate jealousy.

"Some of the guys truly are there to get an education and be somebody, but for a lot of them it's a stepping stone to something bigger and better in basketball," she says. "They don't feel like they're there to study.

"Academically they have a really low picture of themselves. It's not that they can't understand the concepts, it's just that they can't organize well enough to answer a question on an essay test.

"I try to get them to sit down and be realistic with themselves. Not everyone goes pro," she says.

"They feel they have to win to be successful. There's not much I can do about the pressure but I can let them know I care about them as individuals."

Girls make ring history

INGELWOOD — Patricia Pineda and Kim Maybee will make California ring history when they engage in a four round professional bout at the Forum.

Misses Pineda and Maybee are the first licensed pro female boxers to be matched in the state. They will be featured on the Danny Lopez — Famoso Gomez card, Wednesday night, April 28 at the Forum.

Pineda is 20-years-old and fights out of San Pedro. Maybee is just 18 and a graduate of Marshall High School in Los Angeles.

The California Athletic Commission at their last meeting, approved the licensing of women boxers.

Record field in LPG event

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Defending champion Jane Blalock and leading money winner Judy Rankin lead a record field that will tee off Friday in the second annual $80,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament here.

Today's scheduled start was set back one day due to heavy rain.

Miss Blalock flew here Monday after a come-from-behind victory Sunday in the World Ladies Professional Golf Tournament in Tokyo. She won the inaugural of the Phoenix tour stop last year for her only triumph on the 1975 circuit.

" I'm hitting the ball very solid," she said Wednesday. When asked about her chances this year about repeating, she said "there's a lot of tough competition out there, but I think I'll be up there."

Miss Rankin pocketed the $32,000 first prize two weeks ago in the rich Palm Springs-Dinah Shore tournament and boosted her winnings for the year to $42,892, almost double the $22,011 of runner-up Betty Burfeindt.

Miss Rankin predicted Wednesday it would take four or five strokes under par to win the Phoenix tournament, made a couple of strokes tougher by rain Tuesday night and Wednesday. The rain forced curtailment of Wednesday's pro-am to nine holes.

An iron nail left in a damp place will soon be covered by rust.

The rusting of iron is an example of oxidation. That is, when iron rusts, it actually "burns up." But the rusting process is very slow and does not produce heat fast enough to cause a flame.

In this process, the iron metal joins chemically with oxygen dissolved in the moisture in the air. As the iron and oxygen "burn", they from a reddish-brown ash we call rust.

Once started, rust will easily spread.

This is because the rough spots of rust help collect whatever moisture there is in the air. The rusting may continue until the iron is rusted away.

Iron objects don't get rusty if they are covered with something that keeps out oxygen and water. Oil and grease form a thin coat that helps protect iron tools.

Special paints cover such iron things as bicycles, automobiles and ships, and rust never gets a chance to start.

Here's wonderful news! A pocket radio, camera, World Almanac globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, (c/o this newspaper), Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, CA 95061.

OLIVIA NEWTON-JOHN

Singer's career stutters, then soars

By MARIAN FOX

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — The man in the drugstore had no idea whom he was questioning when he asked the blonde at the cosmetic counter if she were a model.

When she said no, he tried again: "Are you a stewardess?"

Undaunted by a second no, he said, "Well, if you aren't, you ought to be, if you want to."

Had he asked if she were Olivia Newton-John, the answer would have been yes and he could have taken her autograph home to his teenagers.

Strange that the man had asked the young singer what she was doing with her life because once, before seven gold records and several Grammies, her parents had questioned her about that.

In Memphis for a concert performance, Miss Newton-John, 26, talked about earlier days in her career. Wearing boots, a dark dress and a collection of gold neck chains, she was calm and relaxed despite the demands of a tour on time and energy.

Granddaughter of Nobel prize-winning physicist Max Born, Miss Newton John is the London-born daughter of a Welshman who emigrated to Australia where he was headmaster of a school.

She said he agonized for years before choosing a career as a teacher and not an opera singer.

"My mother had degrees, my brother is a doctor and my sister left school to become an actress," she said. "So, of course, I had to go to the university or that's what was expected of me."

With support from her actress-sister, she finally quit school and, in time, won her parents' approval of her career.

She sang in her brother-in-law's coffee shop and broke into television as a teenager on an Australian daytime program and "the girl next door to the star" on a British series.

At 16, she won a talent show that gave, as first prize, a trip to London. There she and another Australian girl, Pat Carroll, formed an act and appeared on BBC television and in cabaret for two years.

When Miss Caroll's visa ran out, she returned to Australia and the act broke up.

After joining another group and making a movie — "It was a disaster" — she decided at age 19, "I had to start doing something on my own."

She stayed in London and in 1971 recorded her first single, "If Not For You," which became an international hit.

Two years later she won her first Grammy as Best Country Vocalist with the song "Let Me Be There."

In 1974, when the Country Music Association named her "Female Vocalist of the Year," a controversy began over whether she was a country singer or popular artist.

The award was one of the reasons for the founding of The Association for Country Entertainers to promote traditional country music.

"That's so far in the past that I really don't want to talk about it," Miss Newton-John said. "I believe music, all music, is very important and belongs in everyone's life, regardless of type or style."

Carson signs

LOS ANGELES (AP) — NBC Television has signed a "new, exclusive, long-term agreement" with one of its most valuable assets, Johnny Carson.

Details of the contract were not disclosed. Carson has been king of the late-night show for 14 years. The network calculated that he hosted his 2,463rd show on March 31.

Music contest still open

Application time for the 16th John Child Walker Youth Talent Award Competition has been extended to April 25. The event is sponsored by the Musicians Club of Pomona Valley.

ALAN MARKS, pianist who won the National Chopin Competition last year, will present a recital in the Forum of the Los Angeles Music Center at 8 p.m. May 10. The recital is sponsored by Music Center Presentations in conjunction with Affiliate Artists, a national organization that introduces young artists to the public.

Cash awards and trophies in piano, organ, voice, winds, strings, composition and miscellaneous categories are offered. The competition is open to all students aged 10 through high school residing in the valley or studying with teachers from the area. Application forms may be had from Mildred Turney, Walker committee chairman, 1430 N. Mountain Ave. Claremont 91711, telephone 624-8666.

Judges for the piano category are Victor Savant and Allan Ottinger, both of Chapman College, and Mary Evelyn Golz of Redlands University; for organ, John Ritter, professor at Pomona College; for voice, Lois Allen, soprano soloist at Claremont United Church of Christ, Congregational; Don Bowers, teacher at Alta Loma High School music department, and Georgia Warden, former San Francisco Opera singer now with the Claremont schools; for instruments, Kenneth Fiske, professor emeritus, Pomona College, Clyde Owens, Ontario-Montclair School District instrumental teacher, and Noble Vance, retired music professor of Illinois College; and for original compositions, Ruth Bampton, composer, pianist and teacher.

Cal Poly to stage plays

Cal Poly will present two one-act plays, Eudora Welty's "Petrified man" and "Cop-Out" by John Guare, in the Studio Theater at 8 p.m. April 23. They will be repeated at that hour April 24, 29 and 30 and May 1.

"Petrified Man" is set in a small town where the current attraction is a traveling freak show and the social center for women is the beauty parlor.

Robert Gilbert, who selected the play and is directing it, said, "One of the reasons I picked the play is that I'm always intrigued by the fact that people tell their barber or hairdresser intimacies they don't even share with their neighbors or family."

"Cop-Out" deals with the B-movie fantasies of a New York policeman. The whole gesture-catalog of gangster-detective-film is here in the feet - on - the - desk, badge-flashing, tipped-back-fedora detective. All the male roles are played by one person who is policeman, detective, gangster, four U.S. Presidents and others. The female roles are all played by one actress.

The play, occasionally utilizing film to expand the action, moves from the reality of a police barricade to the lushly stylized settings of a movie-detective's office to "Mr. Big's" apartment.

The roles in "Cop-Out" are played by Lew Crouse and Jeanine Lambeth. The cast of "Petrified Man" includes Luci Dronberger, Diana Hamblin, Laurie Borchardt and Tony Blum.

Bicentennial premier slated

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — A new symphonic work — commissioned specially for the American Bicentennial celebration — will be given its premier performance here May 16 by the Youth Symphony of Kansas City.

"Overture Mid-America" by Robert Washburn will be introduced at Kansas City's Capri Theater. It will also be performed June 12 and 13 in Philadelphia, when the orchestra of more than 100 young people represents Kansas and Missouri at Bicentennial festivities.

Four to show at Gallery 8

An exhibition of recent work by four prominent Southern California artists will open with a public reception from 7 to 9 p.m. Saturday at Gallery 8, Harvard and Bonita avenues, Claremont.

The artists are Douglas McClellan, former chairman of the Scripps College art department and now chairman of the art department at UC Santa Cruz; Paul Darrow, professor of drawing and painting at Scripps; James Hueter, art instructor at Mt. San Antonio College; and Richard Amend of Los Angeles.

The exhibit will include ceramics, paintings, drawings, collages and sculpture.

The show will continue to May 16. Gallery hours are noon to 5 p.m. Wednesday through Saturday.

'THE ROBBER BARON', a musical fairy tale in the Story Theater tradition, will have its West Coast premiere July 15 at the Forum of the Los Angeles Music Center. The work is based on a novella by Eudora Welty with music by Robert Waldman and book and lyrics by Alfred Uhry. The work won Uhry a Tony Award nomination in New York last fall.

'ALL THE PRESIDENT'S MEN' isn't the only book by Washington Post reporters to be sold to the movies. Columbia Pictures has purchased film rights to an untitled book by reporters Ron Shaffer and Al Lewis, recounting a hoax by Washington, D.C. police and the FBI, in which lawmen set up a dummy fencing operation and nailed 130 underworld characters. Viking Press will publish the book in the fall.

TELEVISION VIEWERS ALWAYS KNOW when summer has come — that's when the Burt Reynolds re-runs start. In previous summers Reynolds starred in his old Dan August series which earned better ratings than some of the new shows. This summer NBC will bring back another Reynolds series, Hawk, filmed on New York City location in 1966. Next year it will be Reynolds' 1959 series, Riverboat.

Betrothal revealed by couple

Dr. and Mrs. Malcolm R. Robertson have announced the engagement of their daughter, Kathleen Joy, to Darrell Grasman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Grasman of Chino.

Miss Robertson is a 1972 graduate of Western Christian High School and is completing her final year as a student at Bethany Missionary and Training Institute in Minneapolis, Minn. She is currently serving her internship with Outreach Publications of Covina.

Mr. Grasman is also a 1972 graduate of Western Christian High School. He is a senior at Azusa Pacific College and will receive his bachelor's degree this spring with a double major in religion and sociology.

Lilley-Yarborough vows are repeated

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Brownie McDonald in Alamo, Tenn., was the setting for the marriage of Julia Austin Yarborough of Pomona and Gary Dee-Wayne Lilley of Ontario.

The couple was married by the Rev. Alvin L. Harris in an evening ceremony followed by a reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. McDonald.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Yarborough of Pomona. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Lilley of Ontario.

Mrs. Joan McDonald of Alamo was honor attendant. Brownie McDonald served as best man.

The newlyweds honeymooned on the Tennessee River and are now at home in Halls, Tenn.

MRS. GARY LILLEY

Poster winners revealed

The annual poster contest sponsored by the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of La Verne brought 27 entries from the fifth grade at Gladstone School.

Winners were: Christine Burell, first place, $3; John Kirkland, second place, $2; and Kay Nelson, third place, $1. Honorable mention was given to Karri Robertson, Peri Holguin, Tina Howard and Stewart Snelson. The first place poster will be entered in the Los Angeles County contest and other winning posters will be displayed in stores and churches during Youth Temperance Education Week, April 25-May 1.

Posters were to suggest the positive advantages of total abstinence rather than the destructive results of alcohol, tobacco and drugs.

Judges for the contest were Mrs. Ellis Jenkins, Mrs. Herman Landis and Mrs. Paul Baum, all retired teachers living at Hillcrest Home.

Program beginning at La Verne

Women of the community will have an opportunity this spring to explore their personal and educational goals through a new college program for the adult woman opening next week on the La Verne College campus. Three introductory courses are scheduled to open for enrollment April 19, 20 and 21, and to continue through the first week of June.

These courses, the initial offerings in the new women's program at LVC, are designed to help the woman who is seeking personal enrichment, professional training, career advancement or a liberal arts education, program director Harry Hood said this week.

"Our goal is to offer adult women some real options and to explain what the college can really do for them," he explained as he outlived a comprehensive faculty counseling program which has been made available for those who want to know more about entering or reentering college.

Hood said the college's decision to open a women's program is a direct result of requests that have been made by women in the community who want to use the facilities and educational resources at La Verne.

"We want to respond to these requests because we are convinced that there are services and resources unique to a college and to a college faculty that can be of service to adult women," he said.

"Women in Management," a two credit offering, will meet from 7 to 9:30 p.m. Monday evenings, starting April 19, in the Science and Education building. Helen Diamond, a professor of business administration at Citrus College and a lecturer on women-management programs at various university campuses, will instruct.

Diamond, founder of "Women in Management" (a non-profit educational society dedicated to the advancement of women in management positions), will explore the roles and needs of women who serve in administrative positions in business or government professions and in the volunteer sector.

On Tuesdays from noon to 2:30 p.m., beginning April 20, Maggie Wargin, who earned her bachelor's degree at Pitzer College at the age of 40, will teach a course in "Life Planning for Women."

Mrs. Wargin holds a master's degree in counseling from California State University at Los Angeles and presently is a licensed marriage and family counselor specializing in women's therapy.

Her course, which offers two units of college credit, is designed to enable women to survey their lives in terms of setting realistic goals for the future and of implementing plans for a new or resumed career, creative volunteerism and intellectual enrichments.

June A. Robar, a doctoral candidate at the University of California, Riverside, will instruct the two-credit course "Women in Literature" on Thursday afternoons from 2:30 to 5 p.m., beginning April 22.

Mrs. Robar, mother of grown children, received her bachelor's degree at La Verne College in 1972, and her graduate degree at LVC in 1975.

Her course, an informal exploration of the shorter works by women or about women, seeks to help women to understand better the various roles of women and how to discover how literature mirrors the changing human scene.

In addition to the course offerings on campus, Hood said the new program for women offers women of the community an opportunity to invite college faculty and administrators to join discussion groups on opportunities for women.

Any time there is a group of women in the community who want to discuss options for women today on a college campus, a call to the campus will bring an academic adviser to an off-campus meeting, he said.

"We have a number of faculty and administrative volunteers who will visit with the women in their homes or at their place of business," he said as he discussed what the college refers to as "Discussion Groups."

Women interested in the three course offerings or in forming a discussion group should contact Jane Fagan in the graduate office for further information and literature on the new College Program for Adult Woman at La Verne College.

Children's books

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I've made it a practice to give my two grandchildren books to add to their library. I read to them and then we discuss the stories. On a recent visit my daughter-in-law interrupted our discussion and made a great issue about what she calls sex roles. I felt she was rude and inconsiderate since I select the books and the children obviously enjoy them.

Because I feel this whole thing about sex images in children's books is nonsense, I may never bring the children any more books. Am I being selfsih? — R. C.

Dear R. C.: I don't think you're selffish, but I think the children will suffer if you suddenly stop bringing books or sharing reading hours with them.

While I'm sure your daughter-in-law respects and appreciates your close relationship with the children, she may be concerned about sexual stereotyping in the books you select.

It may seem nonsense, but children pick up subtle messages from everything they hear and read. Females in my children's books are presented as totally innocent and without capacity to think, analyze or change the course of events. Often, the inference is that girls should be passive and that they are incapable of living without help from imaginative, active, intelligent aggressive men or boys.

Victor Larruccia of the University of California at San Diego teaches a coure on Women in Folklore. He observes that Sleeping Beauty's purity and innocence won her the prince. There's nothing wrong with purity and innocence but usually in children's literature, innocence means passivity, obedience and a lack of imagination and creativity.

Books may also make boys feel they are inferior unless they are aggressive and make all the decisions.

This may be why your daughter-in-law is concerned. The problem could probably be solved to everyone's satisfaction if you asked your book dealer to suggest new children's books that do not dhere to those rigid sex roles.

Try to keep an open mind and ask your daughter-in-law if she'd explain her views. Reassure her that you're anxious to learn to share her feelings. She'll welcome your interest. The result may be a more harmonious and rewarding relationship with your children and grandchildren.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I have been happily married for more than two years and although I have a good relationship with my wife's parents, I have never addressed them by name or title. I will look directly at them or walk over when I want to get their attention. They have asked me to call them Mom and Dad, or by their first names if I prefer. I feel very uncomfortable about this, but I can't bring myself to address them in these familiar forms. — S. P.

Dear S. P.: This is a common difficulty among newlyweds. Usually, when no attention is called to the problem, it works itself out. Now that your in-laws have made you self-conscious, you may feel some hostility towards them and this makes it even more difficult for you to address them in loving terms.

Your attitude towards your own parents may be a factor. If you had a loving, dependent relationship, you may have a sense of guilt because you left them when you married. Thus, it becomes difficult for you to call someone else Mom and Dad. On the other hand, if you felt hostile to your parents, it may also be uncomfortable for you to address your in-laws as Mom and Dad.

The way your wife's parents treat her is significant, too. If they feel she is still their little girl, you as a young husband who sees himself as the head of his household, and his wife's help-mate, you feel threatened. Such a possessive attitude could make it harder for you to place yourself in the less independant role of "son."

The whole matter will probably be solved when your first child is born. For his benefit, you'll be referring to "Grandma" and "Grandpa." You'll find it quite easy to use these names thereafter.

In the meantime, compromise. Call them "Mother Rose," "Father Fred." Or, by first names alone to help make the relationship run more smoothly.

Meeting charted at club

Diamond Bar Woman's Club will hear a talk by Miss Cathy Malone, a senior at Ganesha High School, when the group meets at Diamond Bar Country Club Wednesday at 10:30 a.m.

Miss Malone was sponsored by Diamond Bar Woman's Club and sent through the YMCA to the Model legislature at Sacramento as a senator.

Miss Lora Battaglia, another Ganesha senior and Diamond Bar club entry in the district youth music contest, will entertain the members.

A Chinese auction will follow the luncheon. Reservations are to be made with Mrs. Martin Prieto, 595-1837.

'Frame-In' to be held Saturday

Members of Hope Country Chapter of the City of Hope will sponsor a "Frame-In" Saturday at Von's Parking Lot in north Diamond Bar, beginning at 9 a.m. and continuing to dusk.

Ted Spandau, event coordinator, has announced that picture frames and custom framing will be offered. High quality wooden frames, linen liners and metal frames will be available.

All proceeds from the sale will benefit the City of Hope in Duarte.

Understanding helps benefit from crisis

LITCHFIELD, Conn. (AP) — You can benefit from a crisis if you comprehend its significance, and it can help you grow, says Dr. Renee Nell, director of a therapy center where she works with young adults.

Growing up for her was one crisis after another, admits the 65-year-old head of The Country Place here, who considers the phrase, "it can't be done," a challenge rather than a deterrent.

Escaping penniless from Berlin to Switzerland in 1938 — two steps ahead of the Nazis — studying at the University of Zurich, UCLA, the New School and Columbia University, where she received her doctorate, she battled "it can't be done" all the way.

It was her background in Germany, where "growing up was a painful experience," that led her to choose psychology as a career.

"As an adolescent, the loneliness was frightful," recalls the auburn-haired motherly-looking Dr. Nell. "You hoped for an adult to talk to, who could help to overcome some of these problems, but there was no one to talk to.

"In Germany, adolescents were required to be quiet, toe the line and work, with no questions asked. I resolved that when I grew up, I would learn about young people, and help them to break through the barriers of fear, loneliness and personal development."

She was as good as her word, becoming the first woman to work with youthful offenders in New York's Youth House who had never had a female to talk to before she came on the scene.

Her work with her private patients, including young adults dependent on drugs and alcohol, convinced her of the need for a therapeutic community providing a total environment in a relaxed bucolic atmosphere.

Finding it necessary to get away from the city to renew herself on weekends, the psychologist located a little cottage in rural Connecticut and decided to see if working in the fresh air, close to nature, could help some of her most withdrawn patients.

"I started taking one or two of the most disturbed out with me for the weekend," she says, "and found that invariably they responded to working with nature by forgetting their own fears, and becoming less lonely and depressed. It was easier to work through their problems with them."

Eventually, in 1966, she conceived the plan for an open country residence where emotionally disturbed young adults could be helped to reconstruct their personalities through self-confrontation and by relating, at their own pace, to the therapists and other patients.

"In this center," she explains, "emotionally disturbed residents and therapists live side by side, 24 hours a day. Everyone is on a first name basis, including myself."

There's no stopping it?

Brown claims he would try to slow government growth

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. of California says government is going to grow bigger and more costly, no matter who is elected president.

The 38-year-old contender for the Democratic nomination for president says he would slow down the growth of government. But he says the changing structure of the family and of the economy have placed demands on government which will force it to expand.

"Whatever else you hear," he says, "it's pure rhetoric."

Brown, who campaigned for governor of California two years ago on a no-new-taxes pledge, said in a recent interview with The Associated Press that he would not make a similar promise as a candidate for president because "it's just not realistic."

Brown said as president he would continue the sort of tightfisted budgeting style he has set in California. But he doesn't promise any dramatic changes if elected, or any overall cuts in federal spending.

Instead, Brown said of the federal budget, "I think it will grow, and it will grow no matter who is president.

"Why? Because of the change in the nature of our economy. Because, as we become more a mobile country, the structure of the family is changing.

"The old idea of a community out on the farm — everybody helping one another in the private sector — that kind of situation doesn't work in the big cities," he said.

"Today requires an expansion of government, because there are more people living closer together with less family ties resulting in the government providing more services. That is a structural phenomenon beyond the resistence of either of the two political parties."

Brown said his solution is to recognize the inevitable growth of government, but to "put the brakes on" growth and "make it as human as possible" by decentralizing government with more unrestricted sharing of federal tax revenue with states and cities.

"What government has to do is keep the lid on and make these apportionments of a limited amount of resources in the most fair, compassionate way," he said.

Brown has won unprecedented popularity in California during the 15 months since he succeeded Republican presidential contender Ronald Reagan as governor. His unorthodox political style emphasizes telling people things most politicians think the public doesn't want to hear.

As governor, Brown has had more questions than answers, and he has confounded both friends and foes with a mix of liberal programs and appointments, a conservative fiscal policy and a political message that emphasizes limits, lowered expectations and sacrifice.

As governor and as a presidential candidate, Brown has emphasized philosophy and questions — not programs. Brown says he will do the same thing in the White House if elected.

In foreign affairs, Brown advocates a strong military. He says he would trim where he could in the defense budget, "but I don't think there are any big pockets we can just cut off" for dramatic savings.

He says America should have stayed out of Vietnam and Angola, but he is opposed to isolationist policies.

Brown says he would like to see the United States develop all energy resources that it can, but it is impractical to try to be independent of foreign oil. The interdependence of nations for oil and other resources is probably a good thing, because it forces nations to come together, he said.

Brown endorses the Humphrey-Hawkins full employment bill "in principle," but not necessarily in its current form.

He says full employment should be the nation's top priority, and that the federal government should guarantee jobs as the employer of last resort. But he is opposed to putting more people on the federal payroll.

He is more interested in "work-sharing" programs, federal help to encourage labor-intensive businesses, a repeal of barriers to work in what he says are needless government or industry credentials or licenses.

Brown also proposes a new Public Service Corps for youths to work at conservation, urban renewal and other projects.

"There should be an opportunity for young people between high school and getting married or going to college to have an opportunity to give a year or more of their lives in public service," Brown says, "to make money, learn skills, work with other people, experience a certain discipline, to give of their energy to the country, create a spirit of commitment in this age of cynicism."

He also proposes hiring unemployed journeymen craftsmen to lead teams of unskilled unemployed workers on public works projects.

He says more federal money should be provided for these projects, but he doesn't have specific figures.

"I can't tell you what the enrollment would be. We would start off slowly. Whether it would be a few hundred thousand or a few million people would depend on how much enthusiasm we can generate.

"But we have to be ready to put people to work, and obviously that costs money. I won't deny it's a lot more money but in view of the overall societal costs, and how expensive unemployment is, I don't think the costs are all that dramatic."

Brown says his proposals to revitalize the cities are closely related to the jobs proposals.

"Rehabilitating housing, creating jobs, trying to get a better income mix, trying to get money for labor-intensive businesses, these are the things that restore the economic and social well-being of the cities," he said.

Brown favors federal aid to cities in trouble such as New York, "but with restrictions and incentives" to avoid future fiscal disasters.

He says the exodus of the middle class to the suburbs is a key to the ills of cities, but he doesn't have a specific program to reverse that trend.

"That's one of my quarrels with the freeway system, that it has dispersed people so far that you've left the cities with very little economic base, and you've made the economy more dependent on fossil fuel."

On energy issues, Brown says the key is conservation. But he has no specific program for conservation except to exert leadership as president, which he says is not being done now.

He favors developing the offshore oil fields under strict antipollution controls. He says more federal money should be put into nuclear fusion, solar and geothermal research. He said the specific dollar amounts are "details" which he hasn't studied.

Brown says he personally opposes busing for integration of schools, but would uphold a legal court order imposing it.

Brown, a Roman Catholic who spent 3½ years studying for the priesthood, said abortion is "a matter of individual conscience." But he added, "I'm not encouraging anybody (to get an abortion)" and he would not oppose "reasonable limitations being imposed" on abortions.

He said on welfare and food stamps, "I'd try to manage it tightly, but I'm not ready to propose anything in that area."

In foreign policy, Brown says the United States should help the black majority in Rhodesia, and should support Israel. But he says the policy of "intervention" of the past three decades is "sterile."

Brown opposes deep military cuts because "there is a threat from the Soviet Union. There's no doubt about it. That is an expansionary power, and you have to be prepared to deal with that."

But the nation today is "a giant with his feet in cement" that is powerless because of a reliance on nuclear weapons which are too powerful to use in most circumstances, he said.

Brown says U.S. foreign policy is rooted in past alliances and should be given a "fresh look" by people with visions of realistic alliances of the future.

But in most areas, he has no specific foreign policy proposals.

Brown says repeatedly that he represents "a new generation of leadership" which can provide new vision and inspiration. He doesn't have a long agenda of new programs, just a lot of questions he says should be asked. Those programs he endorses are limited in scope.

"If you try to do anything with too much money too fast, you end up wasting it," Brown said. "So I take the more evolutionary, gradual approach. I'm indicting an emphasis hereperhaps a new direction there.

"Instead of kidding people that there's a bag of programs that can be dispensed like jellybeans, I think we need questioning," Brown said.

"We need intense scrutiny of our economic, military and environmental assumptions. A president can do that in a way that opens up the political process.

"What I've tried to do as governor is to challenge assumptions, to raise questions, and where possible, to take certain initiatives."

This does not mean dramatic change — or even any change at all — in most government activities. In California, Brown has left most programs intact. He has been slow to replace Reagan administration officials or change their policies.

Brown's major achievement has been a farm labor board to administer union elections between Cesar Chavez' United Farm Workers and the Teamsters. But opposition from growers has led to a legislative stalemate that has bankrupted the board and halted the elections.

One Reagan program Brown ended last year was a highly publicized work-for-welfare scheme which required some welfare recipients to take public service jobs to receive their welfare checks. A Brown administration report this month called the program a failure.

In other actions, Brown has all but abolished an office that allocated crime-fighting funds, saying it did little to combat crime, and he has instituted layoffs of highway workers.

But critics say his administration is crisis-oriented because he doesn't delegate enough power to others. They say he focuses on one problem, like farm labor, leaving the rest of government idling.

Brown detractors also point to some major state problems they say he has done little or nothing about — like restructuring the state school finance system to give poor students a better education.

Brown discussed this in the abstract, philosophical style which has become a characteristic of his public comment.

"I see nothing wrong with the creative pause," he said.

"A lot of what government does is only superficially related to what goes on in the world. The impact of government is limited, except when it makes big mistakes like Vietnam, or creates recessions, or builds freeways through cities and destroys neighborhoods," he said.

But this isn't a status quo philosophy, Brown says.

"The way we would approach questions is more in keeping with the future. That's what my candidacy represents. There's a certain newness about it. And what it will be is what it already is in the governorship. Whatever you want to call it, that would be translated to the national scene."

Brown's questioning, philosophical style has received partisan criticism from California Republicans. But there has been little public criticism. He has won the most public praise not for his programs, or lack of them, but for his austere, casual and unpredictable personal style.

He lives in a $250-a-month apartment rather than a new governor's mansion. He drops in without warning at meetings, restaurants and cocktail lounges, uses a medium-sized Plymouth Satellite instead of limousine as his state car, works long hours in his office.

Three different California polls between November and April reported that 84 to 87 per cent of Californians surveyed approved of his performance as governor, a record high.

The Gallup Poll rated him fourth choice for president among Democrats polled in a nationwide sample just two weeks after Brown announced March 12 that he was a candidate.
